FLIGHT OF ARMENIAN AFTER BEING HAILED MAY JUSTIFY SINKING

ACCOUNTS OF DISASTER FROM AVON MOUTH INDICATE VESSEL ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE.

WASHINGTON RELIEVED

Latest Sacrifice of American Lives in Blockade Zone May Not Result in Widening Breach Between U. S. and Germany.

Washington, July 1.—Secretary Lansing announced today that until more complete reports had been received from Ambassador Page at London on the torpedoing of the Armenian, in which several Americans lost their lives Monday, the United States would take no action.

Think Sinking Justifiable.

The latest news dispatches from Avonmouth detailing how the Armenian made efforts to escape after being ordered to stop, caused officials to believe the sinking of the vessel was accomplished in accordance with international law and that the United States might have no reason to take up the subject with Germany except to verify through the admiralty at Berlin the details of the Armenian's reported resistance.

Under the rules of international law, it was pointed out that the Armenian, which flew a British flag, as well as any neutral vessel could be sunk for refusing to obey a warning to halt and submit to visit and search, or capture. Americans aboard such a ship lose protection of their government when the vessel offers resistance.

Ambassador Page reported that the Armenian was engaged in "admiralty business," but the question how far the vessel was under the control of the British government by charter or otherwise seemed to be overshadowed in the minds of officials here by the reports of resistance to capture. There was a relaxation of tension in official quarters by the news that the Armenian apparently was resisting capture and what seemed to loom up as possible complications impending negotiations over submarine warfare by Germany, appeared to be removed.

Eleven Americans Killed.

Avonmouth, England, July 1.—There were eleven Americans among the nineteen members of the crew who lost their lives in the sinking of the Leyland Line freighter, Armenian by the German submarine U-39 at Trevose head on Monday. Some members of the crew were killed outright when the German torpedo struck the ship.

When sunk by the German submarine, the Armenian was carrying a cargo of 1,422 mules from Newport News to Avonmouth. The animals were to be used by the French armies in Belgium and France. The vessel had a crew of 72 men and carried 54 men as muleteers.

The submarine was first sighted by the man at the wheel and though the ship was pushed to limit, the craft, rapidly overhauled her and commenced shelling. The Armenian's efforts to keep her astern to the submarine were futile.

Commanded to Stop.

The faster vessel circled the freighter and the German commander, speaking through a megaphone, ordered the Armenian's captain to surrender or he would sink the ship. The skipper of the Armenian struggled hard to evade the undersea boat, but the latter dropped a shell through a skylight into the steamer's engineroom, putting the engines out of commission. The Armenian then surrendered. Lifeboats were lowered and the crew and some mule tenders, nearly all Americans, scrambled into them.

As one of the boats was being lowered a shell from a submarine cut the falls of the bow. The occupants were spilled into the water and presumably were drowned. Five boats loaded with survivors got away. The submarine then fired two torpedoes into the Armenian and the vessel sank within thirty minutes.

The survivors rode around in the boats until Tuesday morning, when a steam trawler landed them at Avonmouth.

Refused to Rescue Men.

Cardiff, Wales, July 1.—Survivors of the sunken Armenian arriving here say that the German submarine ran close to the drowning men who had been thrown into the water by a capsizing boat, but that the crew of the submarine did not attempt to rescue any of them.

Await Further Details.

Washington, July 1.—Officials of the Washington government hoped to receive further details concerning the torpedoing of the British freighter, Armenian, which was sunk off the coast of Cornwall last Monday, with the loss of nearly a score of Americans, most of them muleteers.

In many quarters the sinking of the vessel was regarded as likely to add further complication to the correspondence pending between the United States and Germany, over the question of submarine warfare.

Report From Consul.

The official state department statement is as follows:

"This department has received cablegrams from the American consul at Birmingham, England, reporting that the Dominion line steamship Armenian, from Newport News, was torpedoed and sunk at 8 p. m., June 28, twenty miles west by north of Trevose Head, Cornwall, by German submarine U-38. That the Marconi house was struck by a shot and that twenty-nine men were lost and ten injured. The following American horse attendants are missing:

E. Williamson, address unknown; J. M. Monroe, New Orleans; B. M. Cranberry, 4115 Washington street, Montgomery, Ala.; S. R. Sutton, Cartersville, Va.; Harry Stone, New York City; Cattle Carpenter Brown, Harrisburg, Pa.; Dr. J. S. Viso, Porto Rico; E. H. Brooks, or West, chief foreman, naturalized American, London; J. Smith, Portsmouth (negro); Wall, Foley and Little, Newport News (negroes); Leroy Jackson and John Speed, Richmond (negroes); King, Small, Rickert and Oakes, Norfolk (negroes).

Four Americans Picked Up.

"It is reported to the consul that Dr. Viso and three of the negroes were picked up by a submarine. Other survivors were picked up by the Belgian trawler Professor Stevens and transferred to two destroyers at noon Tuesday and brought to Bristol Tuesday night."

Wheat Steamer Sunk.

London, July 1.—The British bark Thistlebank, which sailed from Bahia Blanca, Argentina, April 26, with a cargo of wheat for Queenstown was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday at a point off East Fast Net, Ireland.

Some of the crew landed at Baltimore, a small seaport about 47 miles southwest of Cork, Ireland.

The Thistlebank was a four-masted bark built at Glasgow in 1891. She was of 2,430 gross tons.

SAY ARBITRATION IS "HIT AND MISS" STRIKE END MEANS

Labor Officials Interested in Recent Chicago Walkout Give Views of Idea Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, July 1.—"Arbitration as a means of settling disputes between capital and labor is hanging in a balance. And the pendulum is the present arbitration proceedings being conducted by the Mayor's mediation board. The eyes of the entire world are on the dial.

This was the statement today of a high labor official, and his expressions were echoed by his associates, all labor officials, in discussing the recent strike of 14,500 street car and elevated men, which completely paralyzed Chicago's transportation facilities and tied up business for two days.

They reached this conclusion, they said, from their own experience and from observation of mediation in other strikes. They pointed out that they were defeated when Chicago was threatened with a traction strike three years ago. At that time they stated that never again would they consent to arbitration and they bided their time until the three years of their contract expired.

The recent ruling in the Western wage rate controversy against the ninety odd thousand trainmen on 98 western railroads was also mentioned as an example. That ruling was declared to be adverse to the labor interests, and labor heads were loud in their protestations that they had been "bunked." W. E. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was bitter in his arraignment of the ruling and of arbitration "as the trainmen got it."

"Go back in the history of arbitrary proceedings as means of settling labor disputes," said an official today, "and you'll find that labor has triumphed in extremely few of them. Take for instance the ruling at Indianapolis in the traction strike of 1913. The men submitted to arbitration after a fight. When the award was handed down the men got an infinitely small raise in wages and a slap in the face in the way of the open shop. The company was admonished and directed to show no discrimination against the men because of their affiliations with the union. The company has never lived up to the award, and the men are tied down by contract, by court injunctions and what not from striking again.

"Arbitration received a hard blow then. It received a much harder blow in the trainmen ruling, and now if the men are again defeated, after maintaining one of the most peaceful strikes in the history of this country it will be the death knell of arbitration.

"The principles of arbitration are just as equitable, but labor has found it impossible to get that kind. And the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Officials, however, are jubilant over the way the strike was conducted in Chicago. The men were orderly. Not a shot was fired and only two minor cases of violence reported to the police, and they were not directly traceable to strikers, but rather to their over zealous sympathizers.

"We showed the world how to conduct a strike in a peaceable manner," said L. A. Bland of the labor interests, who sat in the 12 hours conference with the mayor and officials from both sides that preceeded peace. "There was no violence on our side, which is in itself a great victory."

OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS ARE PENDING

ENTENTE POWERS SAID TO BE PLANNING NEW DRIVES IN FRANCE AND AT DARDANELLES.

DESPERATE SITUATION

Capital of Poland More Open to Attack Than Ever as Austro-Germans Push Forward.

London, July 1.—While the Austro-German armies continued to push the Russians back over the Galician border into their own territory, rumors are rife in London of the contemplated offensive by the entente allies. The French are credited with the intention of making a formidable attack on account of enormous expenditures of artillery ammunition to the north of Arras, where a persistent bombardment has been kept up for the last fortnight, while the Anglo-French forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula are said to be on the point of making a supreme effort to capture the massive hill of Achi Baba, which dominates all the country south of the narrows of the Dardanelles. The recent gains claimed by the British and French on the southern end of the peninsula are considered important because they indicate an approach on the hill on the three sides.

Warsaw Open to Attack.

On the eastern front every change leaves Warsaw, the capital of Russian Poland, more and more open to the drive which the Germans and Austro-Hungarians evidently are making toward that city.

Along the northern line the Austro-Germans appear to be experiencing the greatest success, for the Russians seem to be making a stubborn fight along the Gnila Lapi, while retreating generally between the Vistula and Bug rivers toward Lublin.

In the west both sides have attacked in the Argonne forest and beyond the Meuse without decisive results. The fighting of the past fortnight has been without permanent result except in the Vosges, where the French consolidated substantial gains.

From Vienna the Italians are reported as showing renewed vigor along the Isonzo river, they having brought up new men and guns, but no decisive action is reported.

FINDS HUSBAND HERE; HAS HIM ARRESTED

Mrs. Lawrence Henning Married Two Years Has Only Seen Better Half Few Times.

Mrs. Lawrence G. Henning, from Clinton, who married quite young, was in Janesville today. Although she has borne the name of Mrs. Henning for almost two years, her husband, she alleges, has failed in his duties toward her. His repeated promises that he would return to her and be the support society demands a husband should be, have failed to mature. At last, desperate and forlorn, Mrs. Henning decided that a court interview was necessary.

Today she saw her husband for the first time in many weeks. She set the police on his track with the result that Henning appeared in municipal court this afternoon to answer to a charge of wife abandonment and neglect in regard to support, the complaint having been signed by Mrs. Henning.

Henning demanded an examination. Judge Maxfield set this at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

TWENTY-TWO SECURE CIGARETTE LICENSES

Several More Applications Expected Later.—Violators of Statute Will be Punished.

Twenty-two Janesville merchants will sell cirgarettes under the provisions of the new cigarette law. This number today were given licenses by City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund. The license fee is $5. It is expected that a small number more may make application later.

After 12 o'clock this morning it is a misdemeanor to give away tobacco, cigarettes or cigarette papers to any person, minor or adult. This is the primary cause for the statute being passed by the present legislature. Chief of Police Champion has announced that violators will be dealt with according to the law's provisions, meaning the preferring of charges against illegal sale and also for the giving away of tobacco, papers or "pills."

LOCAL BRIEF ITEMS.

Omitted Names: Through a mistake in proofreading the names of Maurice Dalton, 117 West Milwaukee street; T. F. Siegel, 10 South River street, and T. F. Siegel and T. F. Abbott, 15 South Main street were omitted from the list of saloons granted licenses by the city commission at their meeting Tuesday afternoon.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE FAILS FOR SESSION BY SENATE'S VOTE

Vote Down a Reconsideration of Grell Resolution 17 to 14.—Take Means to Expedite Session.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, July 1.—Woman suffrage failed conclusively for this session today when the senate by a vote of fourteen to seventeen refused to reconsider its vote in killing the Grell resolution.

As a means of expediting the session, the senate adopted a joint resolution providing that new bills may be introduced except by unanimous consent except finance measures, and adopted another resolution to refer all new legislation except finance matters, to the calendar, thus avoiding sending them to the committee.

The senate gave final concurrence to the Nye terminal taxation bill 25 to 6 against the opposition of Senators Bray and Skogmo. The bill gives additional revenue to such lake cities as Superior, Ashland, Manitowoc and Milwaukee.

There was little opposition in the assembly to a resolution by Mr. Stemper, recalling his liquor license bill from the governor. The resolution was sent immediately to the senate, where it was received too late for action before the noon recess.

The house killed the Albers bill which would have reduced the life insurance taxes and passed the Mortenson bill to repeal the county board of education law.

EVELYN THAW MAY BE COMPELLED TO TESTIFY IN COURT

Her Refusal to Obey Subpcena Served in Husband's Sanity Trial Brings New Complication.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 1.—If Evelyn Nesbit Thaw refuses to obey the subpoena summoning her to testify as a state witness at the trial to test her husband's sanity, as reported from Malone, New York, the attorney general's office will apply to the court for a body writ of attachment to compel her attendance.

Won't Consider Excuse.

This statement was made today at the attorney general's office, where the report that Mrs. Thaw said she would refuse to obey the subpoena served upon her at Chateaguay Lake was confirmed. Her excuse that the strain of appearing on the witness stand will endanger her health, would not be considered, it was said, unless put forward in legal manner. It was expected that application of the writ will lead to the taking of formal steps to determine whether Mrs. Thaw's health would in fact be endangered.

To Read Transcripts.

Transcripts of the testimony given in Harry K. Thaw's two trials for the killing of Stanford White, to prove he was insane, were in the possession of the state's attorneys today and preparations had been made to read liberal extracts in his sanity trial now in progress. Reading the evidence given by Mrs Mary Copley Thaw, his mother, in the second trial had not been confirmed when they adjourned yesterday, and will continue today.

Mrs. Thaw in a portion of her story read to the jury told of her son's early life, and his eccentric actions just prior to the killing of White.

PUTS LITTLE VALUE ON EDITORIAL PAGE

Kansas Editor Says No Other Feature of a Newspaper Is of as Small Importance.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles, July 1.—Humble mention of "Mrs. Jones bringing eggs to town" is of more value to a country newspaper from a business standpoint than the publication of an editorial page, Herbert Cavaness, editor of the Chanute, Kansas, Tribune, told delegates to the National Editorial association convention here today.

"Its long list of subscribers and advertising contracts are the chief end of the newspaper game," Mr Cavaness said. "No feature of the paper is as of little importance or as positive a handicap as the editorial page."

The speaker declared, however, that the editorial page of the right quality is an important and necessary asset to the newspaper.

"The editorial page while the best part of the paper is read only by the thinkers of the country."

BIG "DRY" MEETING AT ATLANTIC CITY

National Convention of Anti-Saloon League Opens Next Tuesday in Seacoast City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlantic City, N J., July 1.—Every state in the union will be represented here next week at the sixteenth national convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which will open on Tuesday, July 6, and continue until Friday, July 9. Arrangements have been made to care for neary 25,000 delegates, and the managers of the convention expect it to be one of the greatest ever held by the league.

Under the banner of "A Stainless Flag and a Saloonless Nation," the league hopes to adopt plans to further its campaign against the liquor traffic.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, D. D., LL. D., New York, is president of the league.

Each local church organization in the United States affiliated with the Anti-Saloon league, each Sunday school, each young people's society, as well as local, village, township, county, city, state or national temperance society or uplift organization is entitled to appoint a delegate and an alternate.

Among those expected to address the four big meetings the convention will hold each morning, afternoon and evening are Governor Carlson of Colorado; Governor Lister of Washington; United States Senator Sheppard, of Texas; Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, of Alabama; Former Governor Patterson of Tennessee; United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, of New Hampshire; John G. Woolley, the author; Booker T. Washington, the negro educator; Judge Charles A. Pollock, of North Dakota; Fred O. Blue, West Virginia; Congressman Perl D. Decker, of Missouri; Governor Hays of Arkansas; Former Governor Hodges, of Kansas; Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich.; and Former Governor Stubbs, of Kansas.

"The Logic of Prohibition," "The World-wide War," "The Fight of Prohibition in the Pacific Northwest," "The Negro and the Liquor Question," "What Would Lincoln Do?", "All Tides Sweeping Toward Prohibition," "Prohibition in the South," "The Right of the States to Amend the National Constitution," are topics of some of the addresses.

"The Message of the Convention to the Country at Large" will be delivered by the Rev. P. A. Baker, D. D., of Waterville, O., general superintendent of the league.

The principal meetings of the league will be held on the million dollar pier, and it is expected that many meetings will also be held on the beach in the interest of temperance.

One of the plans on foot is for several thousand of the delegates to go to Washington on the Saturday after the convention and march to the White House for the purpose of presenting an appeal for nation-wide prohibition.

TROOP TRAIN WRECK KILLS 300SOLDIERS

CARRANZA SOLDIERS, THEIR WIVES AND CHILDREN, DASHED TO DEATH IN CANYON.

WARSAW IN DANGER

Recent Reports From Mexico City Indicate Alarming State of Affairs Exists — Non-combatants' Lives Endangered.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Laredo, Texas, July 1.—Three hundred Carranza soldiers and their wives and children were killed and several hundred injured in a wreck of a military train near Monte Morelos, between Tampico and Monterey, according to an American who arrived here today from the interior. The accident took place ten days ago, he said.

The American traveler's story was the first intimation here of the wreck, but this was attributed to censorship which has been extraordinarily strict recently. The train was heavily loaded and proceeding at full speed when it left the track, the American said, and tumbled into a small canyon. The soldiers with their wives and children, and scores of women camp followers, were being sent from Tampico to Monterey. The train was made up of box cars. Men, women and children were crowded inside and others on the top, while many, as is the Mexican custom, were strung under the box cars.

The engineer, it was said, was proceeding slowly, claiming the track was in poor condition.

Some time before they reached Monte Morelos, it was said, the major in charge of the troops, placed a pistol to the head of the engineer, demanding full speed. The engineer complied and just before reaching Monte Morelos the train left the track. The passengers and crew fell with the train into a small canyon and many were literally ground to death beneath the wreckage, the American declared. It was reported the major who gave the command for speed was among the killed.

Conditions More Chaotic.

Washington, July 1.—Conditions in Mexico City, described as growing more chaotic, loomed large today in the official view of the complex Mexican situation. The situation in the Mexican capital, made more dangerous for foreigners by the battling armies in the suburbs, is causing Washington officials more worry just now, than any other phase of conditions in the southern republic.

Civilians Starving.

Insubordination of "some Zapata officers" is said to be rendering the situation more acute. No prospect of relief for the starving civil population of Mexico City is held out in the dispatches. It is declared that until the railroad to Vera Cruz is reopened, there can be no abatement of the suffering. The convention officials it is stated "reclaim to have repulsed" the Carranza forces under General Gonzaiels. Apparently whatever fighting has taken place around the city has been in the more remote suburbs.

Advices from the Carranza government to its agency here say General Gonzales has been instructed to use every effort to induce the Zapata troops to evacuate the capital without endangering non-combatants. The Zapata forces are said to number 25,000 men.

At the Villa agency no word of the condition in Mexico City was received. oGneral Felip Angeles, one of the Villa military chiefs here, is endeavoring to learn the purposes of this government toward Mexico. He said the agency was compelled to rely upon the state department reports.

Huerta Arraigned.

El Paso, July 1.—Victoriano Huerta, former president of Mexico, was to be arraigred today before George G. Oliver, United States commissioner, on charges of conspiring to launch a new revolutionary movement in Mexico, thereby violating American neutrality. Accused with him were two former Mexican generals and three Mexican residents of El Paso.

Case Postponed to July 12.

The case against Victoriano Huerta, Pascual Oroszco and four others charged with conspiracy to violate the United States neutrality laws, was postponed today to July 12. The defendants were continued under the same bonds.

CENTRAL BOARD PLAN IS AGAIN DEBATED

REGENTS JONES AND TROTTMAN ARGUE FOR PHILIPP'S EDUCATION BILL.

VAN HISE HEARD FROM

Head of State University Says Measure "Builds Upon Structures of the Past."

Madison, Wis., July 1.—Advocates and opponents of the central board of-education plan spent several hours before the state senate yesterday afternoon in presenting the merits and demerits of the bill. The principal argument for the bill was made by Regents G. D. Jones of Wausau and James F. Trottman of Milwaukee. The opposition to the bill was led by Judge C. B. Rogers of Jefferson county.

Trottman Favors Bill.

Regent Trottman said that with a central board of education the members would have a view of the whole educational system of the state and would be able to pass intelligently on the amount of money needed to adequately run the different institutions. As a regent Trottman said that needs of the university were emphasized, which individual members did not believe were necessary. He said he has advocated such measures, and was liberally scored by Judge Rogers later, for permitting himself to be thus used. Trottman said that more attention would be given to the study of educational problems and the members of the board would see the problem as a whole.

Regent Jones of Wausau said that he believed that the rural schools would be given greater attention under a central board plan. W. A. Titus of Fond du Lac, a member of the board of university visitors, also advocated the central board plan.

Judge Rogers said that the central board idea was wrong in principle: that it was in its experimental stage in other states and in some states it was a failure. He did not believe that the present system which had stood the test for fifty years should be relegated for an untried plan. If any bill were to be passed, he said the Staudenmayer bill was preferable because that created a board that would make a study of the finances and present their conclusions to the legislature. He said, however, he could find no necessity for any change. The executive committee of the alumni association were opposed to the central board plan and that these objections held good on the substitute bill.

Van Hise Voices Objection.

At the evening session President Van Hise spoke in opposition to the bill. He said that the substitute had been greatly weakened by amendments in the assembly, and that Senator Studenmayer's substitute was preferable. The latter, he characterized as a plan "conservative," one which builds upon structures of the past rather than a plan which destroys whole structures and builds new ones to take their place." He objected to the bill as passed by the assembly, in that the qualifications for the executive secretary have been so weakened as to allow the appointment of a man who has had ten years of experience in any kind of educational work. He said the board should have general authority over the entire school system, whereas the amendments adopted were in the opposite direction. He pointed out that the O'Brien amendment providing that not more than seven members shall belong to the same political party was wrong in principle. It was the surest way, he said, to draw attention to partisanship and thus create a board which is bi-partisan.

President Van Hise was followed by President C. G. Pearse of the Milwaukee normal school, and Theodore Kronshage, president of the board of normal regents, and others.

Lay Over Consolidation Bill.

When the bill to consolidate several agricultural departments into a board of three commissioners was reached in the senate today, it was necessary to lay it over, Senator Everett announcing that a substitute amendment was being agreed upon which would not be ready for presentation this week.

The bill creating a conservation commission of three members was recalled from the assembly last night on motion of Senator Burke, after Lieut. Gov. Dithmar had announced he could not sign the bill until it had been acted upon by the joint committee on finance, as the statute requires. Senator Bray entered a motion to reconsider the vote on Tuesday by which the senate killed his bill amending the county board law to authorizing the county board of supervisors to appoint the members instead of electing them by popular vote. The bill had been killed during his absence.

It is understood that Gov. Philipp has recommended David C. Green of Milwaukee for the position. Following the closing of the bank's doors last fall the state banking officials deemed it advisable to retain Mr. Carpenter because of his knowledge of the business and as he would be able to collect more money than any other man of the institution. SALOON RESTRICTIONS BLAMED FOR DECREASE OF REVENUE IN STATE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 1.—Restrictions against the saloon are blamed for an appreciable decrease of revenue from liquor sales in the western district of Wisconsin, according to figures in the office of the collector in this city. Compared with the close of the fiscal year in June, 1914, this year shows a material decrease in the number of saloons throughout the district.

Month of Brides, Graduates and Roses Has Met With Chilly Reception This Year.

The weather elements have been unkind to June, the month of sunshine, roses, brides and vacations. The normal temperature for all Junes is 63.5. The average for the month just ending has been much less, the record showing 59.4 degrees. This low temperature has been exceeded only once in twenty-six years. In 1889 the average temperature for June was 58 degrees. During June, 1914, the average was way ahead of this month, the figures showing 64.4 degrees.

There were twenty-one days when the temperature was below normal, five days above normal and three days when it was 63.5. The total accumulative excess temperature above normal since Jan. 1 has been 316 degrees.

Notwithstanding the common belief that June has been a rainy month, the total precipitation has been only 3.11 inches.

The normal is 3.67 inches. During June, 1914, 6.05 inches of rain fell.

The heaviest rainfall of the month was on June 7, when .95 inch fell.

While there was a number of rainy days in May and June, the total accumulative excess for moisture since Jan. 1 has been only .55 inch.

MADISON PLANS BIG CELEBRATION MONDAY

$1,000 Will Be Used By Central Committee in Arranging for Activities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, July 1.—Elaborate preparations are under way for a big Independence Day celebration at Madison Monday, July 5. Arrangements are in the hands of a central committee appointed by the mayor, and the city has appropriated $500 to which will be added an equal amount raised by the citizens. The plans contemplate two celebrations, one at Tenney Park in the forenoon and one at Henry Vilas Park in the afternoon, but both parks will be open all day and evening, with bands at both places. Monday morning the First Regiment band will play through the principal streets of the city. In the evening there will be a grand display of fireworks.

In addition to the usual old-fashioned features of athletics, band music, speakers and fireworks, there will be a number of special features, such as aquatic sports, folk and fancy dances, and a living flag representation by over a thousand school children under the auspices of the Grand Army and allied patriotic societies. Aquatic contests will be features of the forenoon celebration at Tenney Park. The living flag will be the feature of a great parade at Henry Vilas Park in the afternoon. Following the parade Columbia will receive the colors from Uncle Sam. The Grand Army will have a tent and flags at this place and will participate in the program. The speakers at Henry Vilas Park will be W. J. McKay, department commander of the Grand Army; Lieutenant P. G. Wrightson, commandant of the university battalion, and Professor Julius N. Olson of the university. Attorney M. B. Olbrich will read the Declaration of Independence. Sol Levitan will preside. G. A. Crispin will have charge of the athletics at both places and many fine contests are scheduled. Free coffee will be served all day at both parks, and visitors are advised to bring cups. SOX SWEEP SERIES; AT DETROIT TODAY

Weaver, Felsch and J. Collins Slam Ball for Long Drives That Bring Four Straight Victories.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, July 1.—It isn't a question of working hard to win games nowadays for the Sox, for victories come very easy, especially when the slugging outfield, together with Felsch and Eddie Collins, get on the warpath. Yesterday "Buck," with Felsch and Collins, lambasted four Brown hurlers for doubles and triples, that netted the Sox an 8 to 6 victory and a sweep of the series. The Sox have started on another wining streak, taking the four games from the Browns. Today Detroit will be met at Detroit. The Sox will be forced to work their hardest at the Michigan city, with the Tigers on their heels in the race, and with Cobb going at a merry clip.

Cubs Divide With Reds.

The Rogers divided in a double header with the Reds at Cincinnati yesterday, taking the second game, 2 to [illegible] losing the first, 1 to 0. Jimmy Lavender allowed but two bingles in the first battle, but lost it. Cheney allowed but three hits in the second and won.

Whales in Rally.

The Whales rallied in the ninth yesterday against Newark, piling up [illegible] runs and tying the score. When the twelfth inning came around, Fal[illegible] was pounded for a hit and [illegible] giving the Chifeds the game.

DAY OF BIG PURSES PASSES TO HISTORY

Dwindling Box Receipts Forces Promoters to Cut Down On Fat Fight Monies.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 1.—Fighters may just as well say goodby to the fat guarantees they have recived in the past. The day of big purses is at an end. Stung often and deep by guaranteeing fighters huge sums only to see the box office receipts totalling but half the amounts boxing promoters have determined to offer nothing but "percentage" terms in the future.

Boxers will be given a certain percentage of the gross receipts. No guarantee that the percentage will amount to any set sum will be offered. The promoters believe that the boxer is worth a percentage of what he draws at the box office and no more.

In order to make the percentage scheme stick, the promoters in the principal boxing centers of the country have decided to form an association. This move was first fostered by Tom Andrews, boxing promoter of Milwaukee, Wis., and it is bearing fruit.

Andrews recently made a flying trip to New York and lined up most of the promoters here. It is now planned to hold the initial meeting of the promoters in Cleveland sometime in September. The Ohio city is chosen because of its central location. Promoters from New Orleans, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Boston, Milwaukee, Denver and New York have signified their intentions of attending the meeting.

At this meeting, the promoters are expected to adopt rules prohibiting the guaranteeing of any sum to boxers. A hard and fast rule that a certain percentage of the receipts will be given to the fighters is [illegible]. After that is disposed of, the promoters plan to tackle the question of a universal scale of weights. At present the weight standard is [illegible] faulty. Fighters posing as [illegible] often enter the ring [illegible] mark. This the promoters plan to do away with by adopting a uniform scale which the boxers will have to abide by.

Rules by which a champion must defend his title within a certain period are also to be taken under consideration, but they may not be acted upon until a later session.

There was a time when there was more honor and less money in playing in fast company. Chance, though he started low, came to be the highest salaried manager in the game.

MORRIS MILLER

Owner Hedges of the Browns is being advised to go out and get some seasoned ball players to bolster up his team. The fans of St. Louis contend that there are too many youngsters on the Rickey team and that if he would pick up some of the discards of other teams who have seasoned that history might repeat itself and the team be a winner once more. In 1908, it is pointed out, the Browns obtained Jimmy Williams, Hobe Ferris, Bill Dineen and several other supposed hasbeens and the team was in the pennant fight right down to the finish. It also is pointed out that lots of players when they change teams will show improvement, the case of Johnston, late of Cleveland and now with Pittsburg, being cited.

* * *

Manager Jennings is not satisfied with his ball team. He wants a hard-hitting third baseman and another catcher of ability; but he admits that the chance of his getting such material is rather slim, though his scouts are scouring the country in all directions in the hope of finding some youngsters who will help the Tigers. The weaknes of the Tigers at third was demonstrated a few days ago. The White Sox, too, are a bit off in that position, and would have a better chance for the flag if they had a strong player there.

* * *

That Joe Mandot-Johnny Griffiths twelve round affair at Canton July 5 has Ohio's big army of fight fans interested, and if present indications are borne out, a record-breaking crowd will see the mill. Bernie Strapp, manager of Griffiths, and also promoter of the mill, is planning for a huge crowd. He is taging the go in the Canton ball park, and also will erect a big tent over the ring, so that the boxers and spectators will be protected in case of rain.

* * *

Jennings has not yet reached a conclusion as to where he will send George Boehler, right-hander. "I will probably hold Boehler for two or three weeks. Then, if he desn't show signs of gaining control the chances are he will go to the San Francisco team of the Pacific Coast league for development," declared Hughie. "There is only one way for a fellow like Boehler to get control, and that is to work in a game. Right now the pennant race is so uncertain that I cannot afford to experiment with him, and it may be that a few months in a fast minor league will bring him to the point necessary for a regular place in the major leagues."

* * *

There is to be another Walsh on the Athletics. His front name is William, and he is a pitcher hailing from Fordham college. His home is in New Britain, Conn.

* * *

For extremes, take Everett Scott, Boston Red Sox shortstop, who recently handled 143 chances in twenty-four games without an error, and the Winnipeg club of the Northern association, which accumulated eighty-eight errors in seventeen consecutive games. It is believd Scott established a new world's record.

* * *

The Cincinnati club is anxious to secure Pitcher Dan Tipple from Indianapolis of the association and is said to have offered big money and players in addition. To date Tipple has won nine straight games for Indianapolis without defeat.

* * *

A member of the Giants predicts that Wendell will be the next regular catcher when Meyers and McLean are through. Manager McGraw thinks a lot of the former Morris High football player and track athlete, otherwise he wouldn't be signed. Wendell is ambitious and in practice is as busy as a bee.

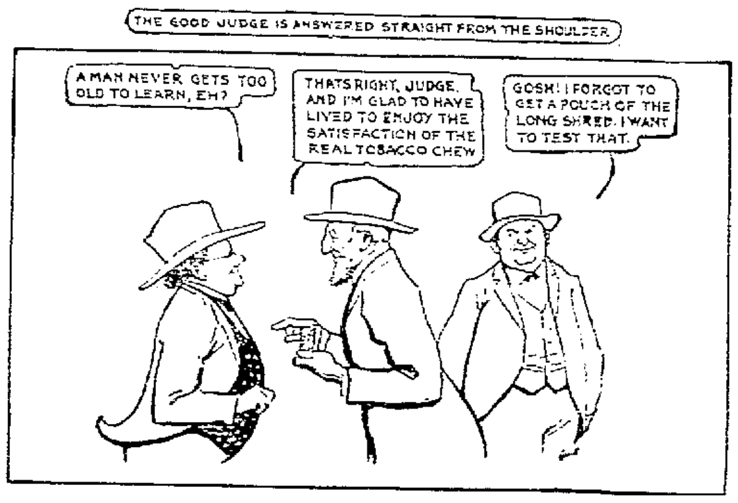
Experts who panned Connie Mack so severely for letting Jack Coombs go will please note that Jack is on the Brooklyn disabled list. One report has it that he sprained his wrist, another that he has a bad leg. That there is any recurrence of his old trouble or that he is permanently disabled is strenuously denied from Brooklyn headquarters.



THE GOOD JUDGE IS ANSWERED STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER
A MAN NEVER GETS TOO OLD TO LEARN, EH?
THATS RIGHT, JUDGE, AND I'M GLAD TO HAVE LIVED TO ENJOY THE SATISFACTION OF THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW GOSH! I FORGOT TO GET A POUCH OF THE LONG SHRED. I WANT TO TEST THAT.

ANOTHER advantage of living in these days—the Real Tobacco Chew. Satisfaction at last for the man who has wanted the good tobacco taste.

There's a large amount of satisfaction in a mighty small chew. So it's no wonder men are telling friends about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

THE SEAMANS' BILL.

That the "Wisconsin Idea," as personified by Senator La Follette's Seamans' bill, is going to be given a nation-wide test, is now certain. Time was when Senator La Follette spoke from the tail end of carts and carriages, stood on platforms, threw off his coat, talked of "God's patient poor," tore the collar loose from the neckband of his shirt, ripped off his cravat and waved his arms and received the plaudits of his faithful. The "Wisconsin Idea" was at its zenith then. It tore the railroads from their very foundation. It cut rates to two cents a mile, it prescribed that certain cars should have certain requirements. It also said the upper berth should be closed if not occupied. In fact it prescribed a lot of things that we today understand to be not only arbitrary, but against public good. The railroads were the target while La Follette was in Wisconsin, and through his anti-railroad doctrine he rode into office and into the United States senate. Then came his fiasco at Philadelphia and the withdrawal of his candidacy for the presidential nomination. Like Achilles he sulked in his tent during the last campaign and permitted his state—Wisconsin, he had always claimed it—to swing into the democratic column.

Down in Washington the railroads were receiving plenty of attention without his help. He must turn his attention to some other reform so he espoused the measure "to promote the welfare of the American seaman in the merchant marine of the United States." Perhaps he had been surfeited with some of Clark Russell's famous sea stories of the days before steam was invented. When the American clipper of the Baltimore type, the bold frigate with its top sails, its main gallant aft sails or whatever they called them, were in vogue and sailors were ill-treated, pressed into service or otherwise maltreated. At any rate he espoused the cause of the bill and aided in its passage. President Wilson assisted him and by democratic support it became a law.

Like the railway legislation it has already come home to roost. While it does not go into effect until next November, its evils are already recognized and there is urgent talk of steps being taken to avert the sweeping calamity that promises to undo all the efforts of the business men to establish a commerce between the United States and South America and other nations on both the Pacific and Atlantic coast. The Rochester Post gives the idea in a nutshell when it says, 'that the law requires more of its unsubsidized ships than foreign governments do of their subsidized lines."

That our ships cannot compete with theirs is certain and one after another of the big American shipping interests, who have slowly but surely been building up an international trade, have announced they are going out of business. Just stop and consider that to run the steamship "Minnesota" that runs between the United States and the Orient, it would cost $130,000 more than at present to operate her and see the results. The Seamans' law raises the standard of living conditions aboard ship. It also requires that 65 per cent of the deck crew shall be able seamen, that no ship shall be permitted to depart from any port of the United States unless she has on board 75 per cent of the crew that can understand any order given by the officers of such vessel. This in itself is not so bad, but stop and consider it carefully.

In effect, like the railway rate bills La Follette so long advocated, it means that the companies must compete with Asiatic vessels with Chinese or Japanese crews, with other nationalities that swarm the western ocean and work for almost nothing, and replace them with union labor at union prices, which are almost prohibitive. It is useless to talk about building up a merchant marine without large subsidies as long as this new law is in effect. We must lower our flag on the Pacific and must give up hopes of the days of the old Baltimore clipper and the supremacy of the seas, ever returning to the United States under present conditions.

La Follette left his mark on the state of Wisconsin that the cool-headed, conservative business men of the state are trying to wipe out. He has now left his imprint upon national commerce and the public at large can see what Wisconsin has suffered while they applauded, when it strikes home to the real business interests of the country as a whole.

IN HONOR BOUND.

When the time arrives for the rounding up of delegates to the democratic national cnovention, the first obvious effort to procure delegates for Mr. Wilson will, according to Mr. Bryan's friends, be made the occasion by the latter of a public statement calling attention to the fact that Woodrow Wilson is in honor bound to reject the nomination, even if it is offered to him. It is, of course, impossible this far in advance to foresee the results of such a statement. Were democratic candidates nominated by a majority of the convention it would be almost impossible for Mr. Bryan to prevent Mr. Wilson's renomination. While the two-thirds rule prevails there will be at least a possibility. But whether the peerless Nebraskan is successful in his efforts to prevent Mr. Wilson's nomination or nor the character of his opposition is certain to prove most injurious to the president's chances of re-election. In the meantime Mr. Bryan is devoting his efforts to lining up the labor vote for a peace movement, it is true, but in such manner as is designed to make it the strong supporter of Mr. Bryan in the approaching political contest.

THE TAX-EATERS.

There is no question in the minds of the average citizen who has followed the manipulation of the present legislature by the skillful liquor-educational lobby, that if the administration's measures aimed at the reduction of taxes fail in passage no one but the members of the senate are to be blamed. The upper house of the Wisconsin legislature for 1915 appears to be dominated by the will of the "tax-eaters." Not content with having taken the cream for the ardent followers of reform for a decade past, they now insist on using up the "skimmed milk" for their own benefit. To start with there were just enough of the "old guard" of ultra reformers left in the senate to make trouble. They have recruited many new members to their ranks and it is easy enough for a man with a supposed "grievance" to become their active partizan. He may not be in sympathy with their doctrines as a whole, but like Bray and others, he readily lends himself to their easy method of blocking administrative measures and causing all sorts of "hob" with plans laid long ago. The voters of the state expressed themselves pretty firmly, both at the primary and at the polls, that they wanted a business administration of state affairs and a reduction of taxes. If they do not get their wishes they will know who to blame, and it is safe to say that there will be some unpleasant half hours for some members of the senate before they come up for re-election next year.

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY
Irving Cummings

Irving Cummings actually shot his automobile in front of a speeding limited train, in a scene in "The Diamond From the Sky." Pilot just missed him. The engineer was not "in on" it and nearly collapsed. Next day the manager doubled Cumming's—salary? No!—LIFE INSURANCE. They tickle Grim Death under the chin in "The Diamond From the Sky." That's why it's so full of gasps, chills, thrills and royal excitement. A pictorized romantic novel. See it Friday at the

Bad Teeth Make Bad Boys

The president of the New York Juvenile association asserts that 91 per cent of the delinquent boys that come to the association to be looked after have bad teeth from which they suffer and that instead of worrying only about their morals the association worries about their teeth with the result that after two yars of competent dentistry and daily use of the tooth brush 90 per cent of the boys are turned out as reformed.

DEPARTMENT HEADS HAND OUT WARNING FOR 4TH OBSERVERS

Police Chief Champion, Fire Chief Kline and Dr. Buckmaster of Health Department Have Requests.

Washington, July 1.—Fair weather for the Fourth of July holiday next Monday was promised today by the federal weather bureau for every section of the country except Oregon, where light showers are probable.

Chief of Police Peter Champion this morning announced regulations to be observed by celebrators of the anniversary of American Independence. Since the fourth of July falls on Sunday this year, Monday will be observed as the proper day for celebrating. Nevertheless the police department desire it to be known that the use of revolvers, guns or arms for blank cartridges of any kind, are not to be tolerated.

Providing such offenders should be apprehended their guns will be confiscated by the police. Furthermore the guilty parties are liable to be brought into Municipal court before Judge Maxfield on the charge of violating the city ordinance in regard to the discharge of firearms within the city limits.

Dynamite caps and giant firecrackers are also on the tabooed list. The use of railroad track torpedoes are also forbidden and any person placing these on interurban, street car or railway tracks will be punished.

The use of these track torpedoes in the city is highly dangerous. The explosive is encased in a tough coating of galvanized tin and as the approaching car hits the torpedo it explodes with a loud noise and with sufficient force to propel the jagged pieces of tin through the air for a long distance with a force that will drive it througn the flesh of one so unfortunate to be in its path.

An incident of where a lady nearly bled to death occurred at one of the local depots during a celebration here three years ago. The cap had not been placed on the track by railroad men for signalling a train but had been laid there for celebration purposes. The lady in question was standing on the platform awaiting a train. The torpedo exploded and a large piece of the tin cover flying through the air, severed the arteries of her wrist. She was in a precarious condition before surgical attention was received.

While the police department does not look for an extremely boisterous celebration on the part of Janesville during Sunday and Monday they are making all preparation to offset any condition that would prove detrimental to the general welfare of the city.

Chief Kline of the fire department will be ready to combat any conflagration consequent on fireworks. He requests that parents be extremely careful in permitting children the use of fireworks and discourages the use of toy baloons set adrift after nightfall. Although these toys produce a pretty effect the danger from them is paramount. While few fires have been caused within the city limits the number on farm properties in adjacant territory has been great and the losses in some instances severe.

Weather indications seem to predict that July 4 and 5 fire losses this year will increase materially throughout the middle west, particularly so in Rock county from the facts that the weather has been extremely dry for the past two weeks and that the Washington weather bureau has predicted that this section will experience a bright and sunny fourth.

"Call a doctor the first thing," was the advice of Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, city health officer. "After this cauterize the wound at once. It would be a good plan for people to always have at hand a bottle of iodine, some peroxide of hydrogen and a bottle of pure alcohol. Any of these are good for open wounds and applied at once offset danger of lockjaw.

"The tetenus germs lurk in the ground and multiply rapidly in an injury due to powder. The application of one of these three fluids plays an important part in killing them.

"People pay too little attention nowadays to small sores and wounds, and as a result tetenus runs riot just following the Fourth of July.

You will see a good game next Sunday afternoon at the fair grounds.

JOSEPHINE TREAT AND PUPILS OF TWO RIVERS SCHOOL PRESENT OPERA

Under the careful supervision of Miss Josephine Treat of this city, who for the past year has been musical instructor at the Two Rivers school, students of the high school at that place presented on Monday evening, June 21st, the opera, "Martha," with great success. Miss Treat assumed one part in the cast, that of Nancy, and displayed her sweet voice to a good advantage. The Two Rivers Reporter coments on her work as follows:

Miss Josephine Treat has scored an undoubted success in this presentation, which might be called a "climax." Certainly the fine quality of the voices and the volume would indicate that the musical Director of Two Rivers schools has pursued a new course during her work here which has steadfastly looked to quality and finish rather than volume alone.

Valuable Borneo Timber.

The most valuable of all Borneo timber is billian, or ironwood. This is an extremely hard timber, sand-colored when newly cut, but darkens with age. It is so heavy that it sinks in water, and for that reason cannot be rafted down the rivers. About two inches of the outside of the tree is soft and worthless, but the inside can be used for almost any practical purpose where a solid, strong and durable wood is required.

LOCAL WOMEN JOIN IN PEACE PRAYERS ON FOURTH OF JULY

Women of Various Churches to Assemble Sunday Afternoon to Pray for Universal Peace.

As a small part of the four million Christian women who will gather at churches all over the world next Sunday to pray for peace and discuss peace movements from the standpoint of the child and woman, the women of the Episcopalian, United Brethren, Christian, Congregational, First Presbyterian, Cargill Methodist and Baptist churches of Janesville will meet in the Congregational church Sunday afternoon, July the fourth. It was decided at a meeting of the officers of the missionary societies of the different churches of the city, held yesterday afternoon at the public library, to join in the great peace movement. The program has been mapped out, which will consist in a special prayer for peace, followed by a special hymn for the occasion and five three minute talks on the subject of peace from the standpoint of the child and women. The meeting will take place at three o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The Christian Women's Peace Movement, as it is called, is an international movement. The council of women for home missions, the Federation of Women's Foreign Missionary societies, the World's Young Women's Christian association, and the Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' associations have federated to work for the establishment of peace throughout the world.

The leaders of the women's peace movement say: "We do not propose to enter into the political side of the question, but will confine our efforts to a peace propaganda based on the teaching and spirit of Jesus. We submit no elaborate program, but promise to enlist the individuals and societies to pray for an end of war. We will teach the children in our homes and churches Christian ideas of peace and heroism. We will study the New Testament and accept its teachings concerning peace. We will endeavor to promote the understanding and friendliness by thinking of none as alien, but all as children of our Heavenly Father."

One of the definite plans of the peace movement is that July 4th be made a day of prayer among Christian women of the whole world. On that day instead of celebrating victory, we are asked to pray for peace through the exercise of Christian brotherliness. A pageant of peace was prepared, which was a part of the Women's Congress of Missions held in San Francisco in June.

The special hymn which has been prepared for and is used at the Home Mission popular meeting, General Assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States, was composed by Charles Lemuel Thompson. The first stanza recognizes the present world situation.

OBITUARY

Grace M. Miller.

Grace M. Miller, sixteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller, 715 Prairie avenue, passed away at 7:15 this morning, after an illness of four years' duration. She was born March 6, 1899. Besides her grief stricken father and mother she is survived by two sisters, Deetle and Helen Miller, and two brothers, Merton and Sidney Miller, all of this city. Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon, July 3, at two o'clock at the home.

Mrs. Alice Martin.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Martin were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the late home in the Waverly flats, Rev. S. W. Fuchs of the St. John's German Lutheran church officiating. The pallbearers were: William Finley, Arthur Minick, Michael Goodman, Orville Morse, Joseph L. Hay and Harry George. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Particularly sad were the circumstances leading up to the demise of Mrs. Martin, she being in apparently good health up to within twelve hours of her death. She was a woman endeared to all her relatives and friends who knew her, and deep sympathy is extended to her family by the surrounding community. The flowers were many and beautiful. Relatives and friends at the funeral are: Mr. and Mrs. John H. Schnoor and Henry Schnoor of Menasha; Mrs. R. Wood and daughters, Bessie and Vialo, Miss Elsie Peterson and Miss Margaret Dunn, all of Delavan, and Albert Conradt of Darien.

Mrs. Joseph Knipschield.

After over three years of painful suffering, Mrs. Joseph Knipschield passed away at four o'clock this morning at her home, 1511 Racine street, of heart and liver trouble. She was 68 years and five months old.

Born in Germany in 1849, she came to Wisconsin when seven years of age. She was married to Joseph Knipschield at 19. To this union four children were born, all of whom are left, together with the husband of the deceased. The children's names are: Mrs. Martin Egan, Superior, Wis., and Mrs. Frank La Crosse of Aburdel, Wis., and the two sons, Peter and George. Mr. and Mrs. Knipschield had been married exactly forty years and nine months.

Funeral will will be held Saturday at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church, interment being in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

John W. Roberts.

John W. Roberts passed away Wednesday evening at 7:45, at his home, after an illness of about four weeks. He was born in Montpelier, Vt., August 23, 1843, and was 71 years of age. He was employed until three months ago as pattern maker at the Janesville Machine company, and was a member of the Whitewater lodge, No. 57, F. and A. M., and also of the G. A. R. He is survived by a wife and two grandchildren, Mrs. Vera Haney and William Thompson. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 from the home at 222 Park street, Rev. T. D. Williams officiating. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Knew Whereof He Spoke.

One day, in the lively old time of cowboy activities, a timid tenderfoot at Bitter Creek asked tremblingly if that bad man, Bill Busher, was hanging around there yet. "No," replied the native who was asked. "But he was last week." "Are you sure?" said the tenderfoot. "Positive. I had hold of the rope."

Proves Early Use of Coal.

Excavations of an ancient Roman villa, near Liege, disclosed fragments of coal, leading to the belief that the fuel was mined in Belgium as far back as the beginning of the Christian era.

CHAUTAUQUA BOARD PRAYS FOR SUPPORT OF JANESVILLITES

Board of Directors Urge People to Buy Season Tickets so as to Insure Financial Success.

"What the board of directors would like to do during the next week is to sell over three hundred and fifty season tickets. This would insure success, I think, as far as finances are concerned." This was the statement made by Secretary Parisoe in regard to the Janesville Chautauqua, which opens the tenth of July at the grounds on North Washington street. "We must have the support of the people in the buying of season tickets," said Reverend Parisoe, "or we can not secure the course for another year."

The sale of season tickets this year has fallen far below expectatons of the board and they are urging the people to support the sale as much as possible. It is only through the season ticket sale that they are able to reap the necessary expense money.

The following places are designated by the board of directors as some of the places where the tickets may be purchased: McCue & Buss, People's Drug company, J. M. Bostwick & Sons, Bower City Bank, Rock County Bank, Smith Drug company, Conway & Dawson, Taylor Bros., Grand Hotel, A. E. Ludlow, Diedrick Bros., Badger Drug company, E. M. Howard and Merchants' Savings Bank.

Those having signed pledges are particularly urged to fulfill them as soon as possible, and to purchase their season tickets at the FirstNational Bank.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

HE DOESN'T BELIEVE IN CHILDREN.

There is a man in our town who thinks that children should be forbidden by law.

No, he doesn't say so in so many words, only in so many acts.

He is thinking of leaving a very pleasant little house, because it has the terrible disadvantage of being in a neighborhood where there are children.

There are no fences and the children sometimes run across the edge of his lawn. Once one of them actually stepped into his flower bed. On that occasion his family feared he would have apoplexy.

That Terrible Croquet Court.

In the rear of his house is the garden belonging to a family with four children. Every year this family has considerately gone away for the summer. Last summer, however, a terrible thing happened to the man who doesn't believe in children. The father of the house in back lost his position. Consequently the family could not go away. Of course this did not matter so much for the children, but think of that poor man's sufferings! And to make them more unendurable the thoughtless parents of the four actually procured a croquet set for the children, hoping to make up a bit for their disappointment. That was the last straw. You can't expect even a patient man to stand everything.

The man who doesn't believe in children promptly protested to their mother. He always took his afternoon nap on that side of the house, he said, and it was manifestly impossible for him to sleep with those children playing croquet right under his window. He wanted the croquet grounds given up at once. For certain reasons it was thought necessary to acquiesce. The children (one of whom was a boy of fourteen) were driven from their croquet court to seek their amusement elsewhere. And the man who doesn't believe in children didn't have to move to the other side of the house to take his nap.

Some Children Are Unpleasant.

Underbred children who are permitted to run loose without respect for anyone's property may make a nuisance of themselves, but the children against whom this man is so impatient are not at all that sort.

The man who doesn't believe in children is an exaggerated example of a type. There are few people as selfish as he, but there are many people whose utter lack of sympathy with a state through which they once passed is incomprehensible.

I'm just hoping that this little portrait sketched from life may help any such to hate the selves into which they are in danger of growing and take a right about face.

* * *

Question—Do you think a woman who prefers to attend to her charities in a quiet way instead of joining any charitable society should be called stingy and selfish?

Answer—No, of course not. Organized effort to help stimulates those of us who might not do our duty in this line if left to ourselves, but if you can get along better without that stimulus all right. Live up to your own standards, keep them high and don't worry about what "they" say of you.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"What was it like?" asked Nell when Olive appeared in the afternoon following her interview with Mrs. Ellson.

"Not a bit exciting. You have but to show an insane person you are not afraid and you can succeed in carrying your point. I think the trouble about poisoned notes and meddlesome interference of all kinds is at an end."

Nell smiled incredulously.

"Well," Olive was answering the smile, "I have delivered my ultimatum. It's Mrs. Ellson's next move and I shall pursue a policy of 'watchful waiting.'"

"It would be a relief if she were in an asylum," said Nell, heaving a sigh.

"Of course Dr. Ellson would not adopt such a measure, except as a last resort," said Olive.

"What do you hear from Dick?"

"He arrives next Saturday. How I wish we could have a reunion of the old jolly crowd, or as many of them as are left, while he is here."

"Mr. Joplin asked to come down from Ann Arbor Friday, and I planned to let him. I hope we can get back to our old friendly footing; this is the first I've heard from him since I refused him."

"Oh, have him by all means," said Nell. "What shall we do to celebrate the reunion?"

"A skating party would be jolly, with an oyster supper after it. I hope the ice will be good."

"Just the thing!" exclaimed Nell enthusiastically. "I haven't skated for two years, but I certainly don't want to forget how."

So it was arranged and there was a gathering of the clan the afternoon after Dick's arrival. Mr. Joplin joined the skating party. Olive received him as if the last scene between them had never occurred.

As they were skating by themselves at some distance from the others, Olive remarked slyly:

"Your friend had a cold wait for you by the steps the other night, didn't she?"

Joplin stared. "So you saw her?" he asked. "Wasn't that the craziest thing you ever heard of?"

"Crazy is right. I told her that if she didn't stop I'd tell Dr. Ellson and have her alimony cut off."

"When did you see her?" he asked in utter astonishment.

"I went to her lodging house and sent in your card," she replied.

"My head would be good squirrel food, I guess. I can't follow."

"Why, I figured it out as you had gone away together that you and Mrs. Ellson were fellow conspirators and that your card would bring an interview where mine would not."

"How did you know where she lived? She would not let me go home with her."

"Nell and I followed her to her boarding house once, after she had rendered us some attention. We thought turn about was fair play."

"Olive!" exclaimed the young man, "if you aren't the most——" he paused for a word.

"Eccentric," supplied the girl, skating away in a straight line for the crowd.

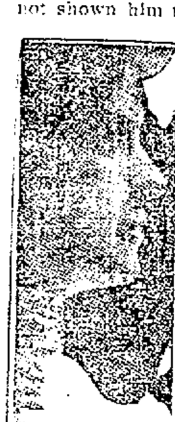
"Tell me more about your interview," persisted Joplin, catching up with her.

"There's not much more to tell. I spread out her sins in a row before her, bribing the maid to spy on me and read my letters, her poison letters, her shadowing my home. I mentioned the mall, and I delivered my ultimatum. I don't expect to hear from her again."

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, In Care of The Gazette.



Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have a boy friend who once cared a great deal for me, at least he said so. He has asked me for my love, but I have not shown him that I do love him, although I care a great deal for him. Lately he made a date with me and did not keep it, but had a very good excuse. Then he made another and just a couple of hours before he was expected he called up and said that he was sick. Now he calls up and talks of coming out, but never comes, and he writes to me once in a while. I answer his letters, but I do not call him up. Do you think he cares for me or not? And why does he act in this way? Why do you think he calls me up and talks of coming out if he does not intend to?

(2) I am asked to a party in a short time from now and I must bring a boy friend with me. Do you advise me to ask this boy?

(3) He is ten years older than I. Do you think that is too great a difference in ages?

(4) I have something here at my house that belongs to this young man. Do you think I ought to send it to him or wait until he comes for it? He left it at my house some time ago.

A READER.

(1) I think the boy has grown tired of you. He calls up when he hasn't anything else to do, but he isn't interested enough to call. You haven't lost him entirely, and if you manage things right I think you can renew his interest in you. Don't answer his next letter. When he phones be pleasant, but don't mention his coming to see you.

(2) Ask another boy to the party and don't make any excuses for doing so. This will hurt the vanity of the boy you care for and may arouse his jealousy, the very best thing in the world.

(3) Not if you are in your twenties. I think girls in their teens should go with boys nearer their own age.

(4) Let him come for it.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a foreigner, but have always lived among Americans, and I am not ashamed of my nationality. Not living among them I cannot speak their language. My husband is an American and we have a little girl five years old. Now his brother insists upon calling my little girl nicknames on account of my nationality and his father says things to me before strangers. He seems to think it smart. Now Mrs. Thompson, I can stand them calling me nicknames, but the little girl will soon be going to school and those names will always cling to her, especially in a country school where we have so many young teachers and children of all ages. I have no one to go to, having no mother, so please be so kind as to give me some advice.

MRS. N.

As long as you and the little girl show that you are teased by the nicknames people will continue to use them. Be sports and let them call you by them until they are tired of it without showing that you care. Indifference to what they say is the only thing that will cure them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Out of politeness I accompanied a young lady home from a party. She seemed to take it for granted that I would continue my attentions to her. I am a very popular fellow, and she has told all my young lady friends that I am in love with her, but such is not the case. I am made miserable by her attentions to me. How may I avoid them without being rude?

JACK G.

Be kind and gentlemanly to the girl as long as you can. If it is possible have one of your girl friends talk to her and try to make her see that you do not care for her.

Household Hints

SIMPLE DESSERTS.

Steamed Cherry Roll—Make a biscuit dough. Roll out one-half inch thick, spread lightly with butter, scatter seeded cherries, sweet or sour, over the surface, sprinkle with sugar, roll, fasten ends by pinching together. Steam thirty minutes and dry in oven ten minutes. Serve with sugar and cream.

Snowballs With Strawberry Sauce—Cream one-third cup butter, half cup sugar, two-thirds cup milk. Sift together one cup flour, half cup cornstarch, three level teaspoons baking powder. Stir gradually into the batter, then whip in the beaten whites of two eggs. Put batter in a well buttered cups and steam thirty minutes. Turn out on plate and pour over strawberry sauce, made as follows: Cream half cup butter with 1½ cups powdered sugar, add yolks of two eggs and one quart mashed strawberries the last thing.

Epicure's Lemon Pie—One cup sugar, three teaspoons flour, butter size of English walnut, yolks of three eggs; beat all together, then add juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cup milk and whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Line pie tin with pie crust and pour in mixture. Bake in quick oven. The whites will come on top and form a crust. Make lemon pie in this way once and you will not make it any other way again.

Sour Cream Pie—Mix together one cup sugar, one cup chopped raisins, one cup sour cream, one well beaten egg, half teaspoon cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, one-fourth teaspoon cloves and one teaspoon vinegar. Bake in two crusts.

Cottage Pudding—One egg, three-fourths cup sugar, three tablespoons butter, one cup milk, two tablespoons baking powder, 2½ cups flour. Bake one-half hour.

Sauce: One cup sugar and one tablespoon butter wet with a little cold water. Add a pint of boiling water, boil two or three minutes.

Prune Whip—Pick over one-third pound prunes, soak them several hours in cold water, then cook until soft. Remove stones and put prunes through strainer. Add one-half cup sugar and cook five minutes. The mixture should then be of consistency of marmalade. Beat the whites of three or four eggs until stiff and add one-half tablespoon lemon juice. Combine these mixtures and pile lightly in a mold or dish. Bake in oven about twenty-five minutes, so it will become a light brown. This may be served with a yellow sauce.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Vaseline will make the eyebrows and eyelashes grow. Apply with camel's-hair brush, stroking the eyebrows toward the temples.

Ill health, worry, ill nature and lack of fresh air and exercise will produce wrinkles quicker than old age. The best way to get rid of the wrinkles is to remedy the cause.

A delightful bath bag is made by taking equal quantities of bran and starch. After mixing thoroughly, add eight ounces of pulverized castile soap. For each bath fill a small cheesecloth bag with the mixture, using it in place of a washcloth or sponge.

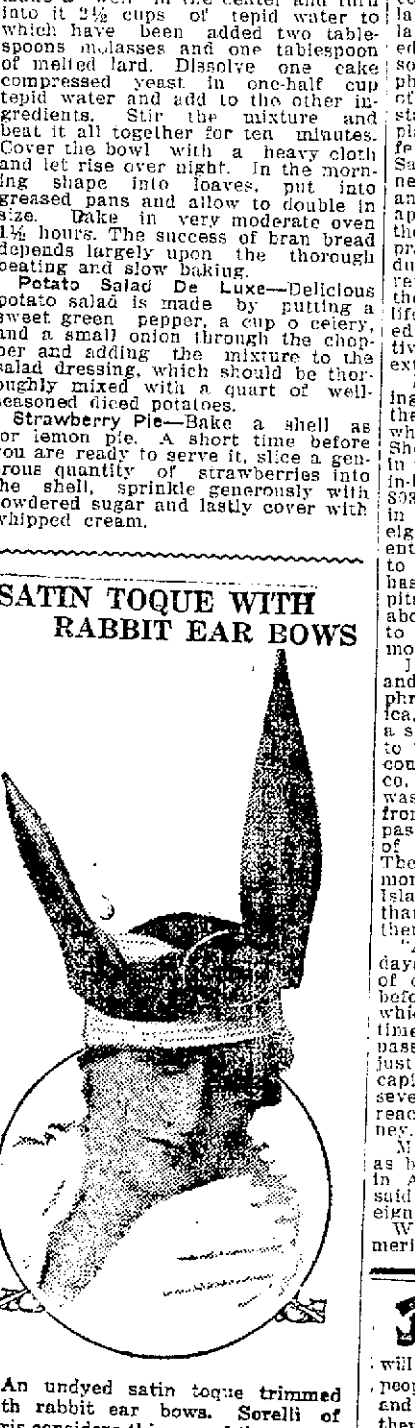
THE TABLE.

Bran Bread—Good for an invalid: For two loaves use one quart flour, one quart bran, and one even tablespoonful salt. Mix these together, make a "well" in the center and turn into it 2½ cups of tepid water to which have been added two tablespoons molasses and one tablespoon of melted lard. Dissolve one cake compressed yeast in one-half cup tepid water and add to the other ingredients. Stir the mixture and beat it all together for ten minutes. Cover the bowl with a heavy cloth and let rise over night. In the morning shape into loaves, put into greased pans and allow to double in size. Bake in very moderate oven 1½ hours. The success of bran bread depends largely upon the thorough beating and slow baking.

Potato Salad De Luxe—Delicious potato salad is made by putting a sweet green pepper, a cup o celery, and a small onion through the chopper and adding the mixture to the salad dressing, which should be thoroughly mixed with a quart of well-seasoned diced potatoes.

Strawberry Pie—Bake a shell as for lemon pie. A short time before you are ready to serve it, slice a generous quantity of strawberries into the shell, sprinkle generously with powdered sugar and lastly cover with whipped cream.

SATIN TOQUE WITH RABBIT EAR BOWS



An undyed satin toque trimmed with rabbit ear bows. Sorelli of Paris considers this one of the smartest creations of the season.

RETURNS FROM NAVAL STATION AT TUTUILA

MAY H. HUMPHREY IS IN CITY ON FURLOUGH FROM SAMOA ISLANDS.—IS A NURSE IN U. S. NAVY.

GIVES GRAPHIC STORY

Was Born in Emerald Grove. Spent Years at the Isthmus. Will Be In City For Two Months.

The return of Miss May H. Humphrey to Janesville for a two months' visit from Tutuila island, one of the principal islands of the Samoa group, located in the Pacific ocean, where she has acted as naval nurse for the past twenty months in a U. S. government naval hospital station, forms the basis for an interesting story from one of the world's most secluded spots, and of the work of Miss Humphrey while on hospital duty there. Miss Humphrey will be remembered by Janesville people and Gazette readers as having formerly lived in Janesville, and as having written articles for the Gazette from Canal Zone between 1904 and 1907, where she spent several years in civil service work.

MAY H. HUMPHREY.

Miss Humphrey, since leaving the Isthmus, has held positions at San Francisco for thirty months, Washington, D. C., Norfolk, Virginia, in the Philippines, and at the Samoa Islands. Her varied experience is interesting, especially her work in the Samoa group, where she conducted a training school for the girls on those islands, giving instruction in nursing.

At Tutuila island, where the United States navy hospital and naval station are located, there is a crater. The hospital and station are located in the mouth of this gigantic crater, on the banks of a bay, made possible by the ocean overflowing its banks. The nearest places from this island are Honolulu at one side and Sidney, Australia, on the other, it being a one week's trip by boat to either place. While the island is not as far from the United States as are the Philippines, it is the farthest from civilization. The island is twenty miles long and four miles wide and is thirteen degrees south of the equator.

At the island, but one small battle cruiser has been stationed, together with a tug. As the cruiser has been ordered to leave for other points, on or about July the first, the tug will only remain. There is little use of the station nowadays, as far as the United States is concerned, since the British government has gained almost unlimited control of the islands. Soon after the European war commenced, soldiers in New Zealand, a British subject, went down into the Samoa Group and captured the German possessions, leaving but England and United States as the possessors of the islands. Because of civil strife that was brought about through rivalry in the islands by the inhabitants there, United States, Germany and England formed a protectorate, each country taking possession of an island. On the American island, Tutuila, the United States navy established a station, which she may give up soon, and at which place Miss Humphrey was sent. But fourteen naval officers have been employed at this station, with the inhabitants of the place all white people, excepting a few civilians in the employ of the Samoan government. The station has never been recognized by Congress, and has been cared for by the naval appropriation. The only revenue on the island is obtained from the copra, or the meat of the cocoanut, the duty received adding also to the total revenue. Outside of this occupation, the people of the islands live an idle life. Until Miss Humphrey established a training school for the girls, activity on this particular island was extremely dull.

Miss Humphrey has many interesting pictures of the islands, and of the naval station, also many curios, which she may exhibit when received. She will spend the next two months in this city with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Humphrey, 803 St. Mary's avenue. She was born in Emerald Grove, where she lived eighteen years, after which her parents moved to Waterloo, and she came to this city on a short sojourn. She has next been called to the naval hospital at Boston, where she will report about August first, there being little to do at the present time on the Samoa islands.

In telling of her trip from the islands to the United States, Miss Humphrey says: "In order to get to America, I had to go to Sidney, Australia, a seven days' trip. Then I was forced to wait at Sidney four days before I could get a vessel for San Francisco. What seemed to provoke me most was the fact that the ships sailing from San Francisco to Sidney always pass within a few miles from the coast of the island where I was staying. They never stopped, and only once a month would a person on the Samoa Islands have a chance of leaving, for that is as often as the vessels stop there.

"After remaining in Sidney four days, I caught a steamer for Frisco. It, of course, took another week's time before we passed the Samoa Islands, which two weeks and four days was time lost in getting home. When we passed the islands, it took the vessel just a week to reach Honolulu, the capital of the Hawaiian Islands. In seven days more, San Francisco was reached, after a most tiresome journey."

Miss Humphrey expressed herself as being entirely satisfied that she is in America again, and to stay. She said she had experienced enough foreign duty.

When the vessel crossed the 180th meridan, Miss Humphrey experienced something most unusual. When the people on board sat down for breakfast, the captain informed them that in a few minutes they would pass the 180th meridian, and that a day would be lost in so doing to correct the time. It was Thursday morning. When the tourists arose from the table, the captain informed them that it was Friday morning.

"Calling me bad names doesn't change anything," she pointed out, and her tone reflected something of his own elemental contempt for the euphemisms. "You have five hours in which to make Mr. Raymer understand that you have stopped trying to smash him. Wouldn't it be better to begin on that? You can curse me out any time, you know."

Jasper Grierson's rage fit, or the mud-volcano manifestation of it, passed as suddenly as it had broken out. Swinging heavily in his chair he took up the papers again, reread them thoughtfully, and then swung slowly to face the situation.

"Let's see what you want—show up your hand."

"I have shown it. Take the prop of your backing from behind this labor trouble, and let Mr. Raymer settle with his men on a basis of good-will and fair dealing."

"Is that all?"

"No. You must cancel this pineland deal. You have broken bread with Mr. Galbraith as a friend, and I'm not going to let you be worse than an Arab."

Grierson's shaggy brows met in a reflective frown, and when he spoke the bestial temper was rising again.

"When this is all over, and you've gone to live with Raymer, I'll kill him," he said, with an outthrust of the hard jaw; adding: "You know me, Madge."

"I thought I did," was the swift retort. "But it was a mistake. And as for taking it out on Mr. Raymer, you'd better wait until I go 'to live with him,' as you put it. Besides, this isn't Yellow Dog gulch. They hang people here."

"You little she-devil! If you push me into this thing, you'd better get Raymer, or somebody, to take you in. You'll be out in the street!"

"I have thought of that, too," she said, coolly; "about quitting you. I'm sick of it all—the getting and the spending and the crookedness. I'd put the money—yours and mine—in a pile and set fire to it, if some decent man would give me a calico dress and a chance to cook for two."

"Raymer, for instance?" the father cut in, in heavy mockery.

"Mr. Raymer has asked me to marry him, if you care to know," she struck back.

"Oho! So that's the milk in the cocoanut, is it? You sold me out to [illegible] in with him!"

"You may put it that way, if you like; I don't care." She was drawing on her driving gloves methodically and working the fingers into place, and there were sullen fires in the brooding eyes.

"I've been thinking it was the other one—the book writer," said the father. Then, without warning: "He's a damned crook."

The daughter went on smoothing the wrinkles out of the fingers of her gloves. "What makes you think so?" she inquired, with indifference, real or skillfully assumed.

"He's got too much money to be straight. I've been keeping cases on him."

"Never mind Mr. Griswold," she interposed. "He is my friend, and I suppose that is enough to make you hate him. About this other matter—[illegible] minutes before three o'clock this afternoon I shall go back to Mr. Raymer. If he tells me that his troubles are straightening themselves out, I'll get the papers."

"You'll bring 'em here to me?"

"Some day; after I'm sure that you have broken off the deal with Mr. Galbraith."

Jasper Grierson let his daughter get as far as the door before he stopped her with a blunt-pointed arrow of contempt.

"I suppose you've fixed it up to marry that college-sharp dub so that his mother and sister can rub it into me right?" he sneered.

"You can suppose again," she returned, shortly. "If I should marry him, it would be out of pure spite to those women. Because, when he asked me, I told him No. You weren't counting on that, were you?" And having fired this final shot of contradiction she departed.

After Miss Grierson had driven home from the bank between ten and eleven in the morning, an admiring public saw her no more until just before bank-closing hours in the afternoon. As she passed in the basket phaeton between half-past two and three through the overcrossing suburb there were signs of an armistice apparent, even before the battlefield was reached. Pottery Flat was populated again, and the groups of men bunched on the street corners arguing peacefully. Miss Grierson pulled up at one of the corners and beckoned to a young iron-molder.

"Anything new, Malcolm?" she asked.

"You bet your sweet life!" said the young molder, meeting her, as most men did, on a plane of perfect equality and frankness. "We was hoodooed to beat the band, and Mr. Raymer's got us, comin' and goin'. There wasn't no orders from the big federation, at all; and that crooked guy, Clancy, was a fake!"

"He has gone?" she said.

"He'd better be. If he shows himself 'round here again, there's goin' to be a mix-up."

Miss Grierson drove on, and at the iron works there were more of the peaceful indications. The gates were open, and a switching engine from the railroad yards was pushing in a car load of furnace coal. By all the signs the trouble flood was abating.

Raymer saw her when she drove under his window and calmly made a hitching post of the clerk who went out to see what she wanted. A moment later she came down the corridor to stand in the open doorway of the manager's room.

"You are still alone?" she asked.

"Yes; Griswold hasn't shown up since morning. I don't know what has become of him."

"And the labor trouble, is that going to be settled?"

He looked away and ran his fingers through his hair as one still puzzled and bewildered. "Some sort of a miracle has been wrought," he said. "A little while ago a committee came to talk over terms of surrender. It seems that the whole thing was the result of a—of a mistake."

"Yes," she returned quietly, "it was just that—a mistake." And then: "You are going to take them back?"

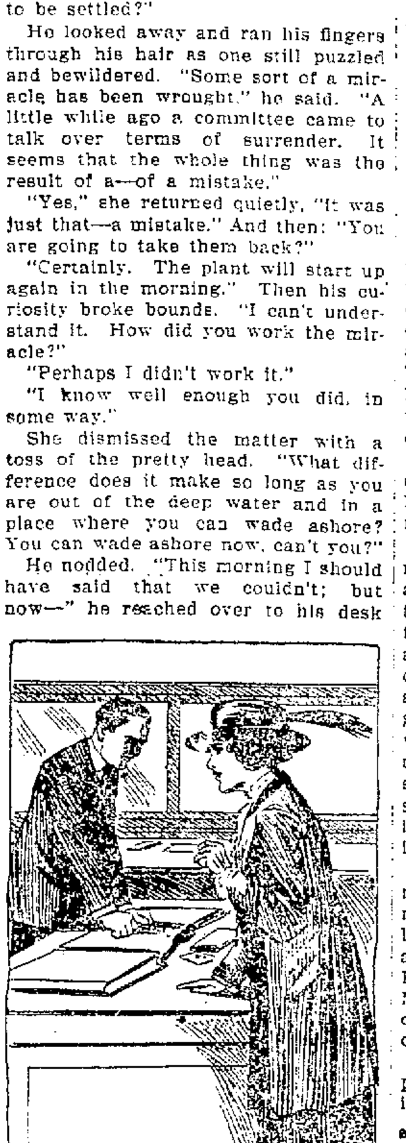
"Certainly. The plant will start up again in the morning." Then his curiosity broke bounds. "I can't understand it. How did you work the miracle?"

"Perhaps I didn't work it."

"I know well enough you did, in some way."

She dismissed the matter with a toss of the pretty head. "What difference does it make so long as you are out of the deep water and in a place where you can wade ashore? You can wade ashore now, can't you?"

He nodded. "This morning I should have said that we couldn't; but now—" he reached over to his desk and handed her a letter to which was pinned a telegram less than an hour old.



"You Can Wade Ashore Now, Can't You?"

She read the letter first. It was a curt announcement of the withdrawal of the Pineboro railroad's repair work. The telegram was still briefer: "Disregard my letter of yesterday;" this, and the signature, "Atherton." The smaller plotter returned the correspondence with a little sigh of relief. It had been worse than she had thought, and it was now better than she had dared hope.

"I must be going," she said, rising. "If you will give me my envelope?"

He crossed to the safe and got it for her. His curiosity was still keen-edged, but he beat it back manfully.

"I wish you wouldn't hurry," he said hospitably. He was searching the changeful eyes for the warrant to say more, but he could not find it.

He was obliged to let it go at that; but when they reached the phaeton, and the horse-holding clerk had been relieved, he spoke of another matter.

"I'm a little worried about Kenneth," he told her. "He came down this morning looking positively wretched, but he wouldn't admit that he was sick. Have you seen much of him lately?"

"Not very much"—guardedly—"Did you say he had gone home?"

"I don't know where he has gone. He left here about half an hour before you came, and I haven't seen him since."

"And you are worried because he doesn't look well?"

"Not altogether on that account. I'm afraid he is in deep water of some kind. I never saw a person change as he has in the past week or so. You know him pretty well, and what a big heart he has?"

She nodded, half mechanically.

"Well, there have been times lately when I've been afraid he'd kill somebody—in this squabble of ours, you know. He has been going armed—which was excusable enough, under the circumstances—and night before last, when we were walking uptown together, I had all I could do to keep him from taking a pot-shot at a fellow who, he thought, was following us. I don't know but I'm taking all sorts of unfair advantage of him, telling you this behind his back, but—"

"No; I'm glad you have told me. Maybe I can help."

He put her into the low basket seat, and tucked the dust-robe around her carefully. While he was doing it he looked up into her face and said: "I'd love you awfully hard for what you have done today—if you'd let me."

It was like her to smile straight into his eyes when she answered him.

"When you can say that—in just that way—to the right woman, you'll find a great happiness lying in wait for you, Edward, dear." And then she spoke to the Morgan mare and distance came between.

As once before, in the earlier hours of the same day, Miss Grierson took the roundabout way between the Raymer plant and Mereside, making the circuit which took her through the college grounds and brought her out at the head of upper Shawnee street. The Widow Holcomb was sitting on her front porch, placidly crocheting, when the phaeton drew up at the curb.

"Mr. Griswold," said the phaeton's occupant. "May I trouble you to tell him that I'd like to speak to him a moment?"

Mrs. Holcomb, friend of the Raymers, the Farnhams, and the Oswalds, and own cousin to the Barrs, was of the perverse minority; and, apart from this, she had her own opinion of a young woman who would wait at the door of a young man's boarding house and take him off for a night drive to goodness only knew where, and from which he did not return until goodness only knew when. So there was no stitch missed in the crocheting when she said, stiffly: "Mr. Griswold isn't in. He hasn't been home since morning."

Miss Grierson drove on, and the most casual observer might have remarked the strained tightening of the lips and the two red spots which came and went in the damask-peach cheeks. But it was not until she had reached Mereside, and had gained the shelter of the deserted library, that speech came.

"O pitiful Christ!" she sobbed, dropping into a chair and hiding her face in the crook of her arm; "he's done it at last!—he's trying to hide, and that's what they've been waiting for! And I don't know where to look!"

But Matthew Broffin, tilting lazily in his chair on the downtown hotel porch, knew very well where to look, and he was watching the one outlet of the hiding place as an alert, though outwardly disregardful, house cat watches a mouse's hole.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Quality of Mercy.

On no less an authority than that of the great doctor who came again from Chicago for a second consultation with Doctor Farnham, Andrew Galbraith owed his life during the two days following his return to consciousness to the unremitting care and devotion of one person.

Seconding the efforts of the physicians, and skillfully directing those of the nurses, Margery threw herself into the vicarious struggle with the generous self-sacrifice which counts neither cost nor loss; and on the third day she had her reward. Her involuntary guest and charge was distinctly better, and again, so the two doctors declared, the balance was inclining slightly toward recovery.

It was in the afternoon of this third day, when she had been reading to him, at his own request, the sayings of the Man on the Mount, that he referred for the first time to the details of the accident which had so nearly blotted him out. Upon his asking, she related the few and simple facts of the rescue, modestly minimizing her own part in it, and giving her companion in the catboat full credit.

"The writer-man," he said thoughtfully, when she had finished telling him how Griswold had worked over him in the boat, and how he would not give up. "I remember; you fetched him out to the hotel with you one day; no, you needna fear I'll be forgetting him." Then, with a shrewd look out of the steel-gray eyes: "How long have you been knowing him, Maggie, child?"

"Oh, for quite a long time," she hastened to say. "He came here, sick and helpless, one day last spring, and—well, there isn't any hospital here in Wahaska, you know, so we took him in and helped him get over the fever, or whatever it was. This was his room while he stayed with us."

Andrew Galbraith wagged his head on the pillow.

"I know," he said. "And ye're doing it again for a poor auld man whose siller has never bought him anything like the love you're spending on him. You're everybody's good angel, I'm thinking, Maggie, lassie." Though he did not realize it, his sickness was bringing him day by day nearer to his far-away boyhood in the Inverness-shire hills, and it was easy to slip into the speech of the mother-tongue. Then, after a long pause, he went on: "He wasna wearing a beard, a red beard trimmed down to a spike—this writer-man, when ye found him, was he?"

She shook her head. "No; I have never seen him with a beard."

The sick man turned his face to the wall, and after a time she heard him repeating softly the words which she had just read to him. "But if ye forgive not men . . . neither will your father forgive. . . ." And again, "Judge not that ye be not judged." When he turned back to her there were new lines of suffering in the gray old face.

"I'm sore beset, child; sore beset," he sighed. "You were telling me that MacFarland and Johnson will be here tonight?"

Dinner Stories

"How about that musical comedy you promised me?" asked the manager impatiently. "You promised to have it ready for me at half-past three, and here it's almost four o'clock."

"Just a moment," said the author. "I've got it all done but the plot, and that won't take me five minutes."

"What are your views on woman suffrage?"

"I'm against it," said the politician decidedly. "You can fool the men voters with cheap cigars, but the women folks would never stand for cheap candy."

"Did you speak to Mr. Nextdoor about how his dog kept us awake all last night by howling at the moon?"

"You bet I did. I told him if he didn't put a stop to it I'd buy a piano and let the girls take lessons."

"How about paying me for that suit I made for you two years ago?" asked the tailor.

"You surely can't expect me to pay for that suit," said the impecunious young man. "Why, it's all out of style."

The sinking of the Lusitania recalls an epigram about this ship which the Sultan of Morocco's grand vizier made to Jules Huret. The grand vizier, a very old man, received M. Huret, who is a French journalist, in Fez. M. Huret described the wonders of modern science and invention to his host. He told him about the Lusitania, then just completed, which could do her 27 knots an hour. "Think of it!" said M. Huret, enthusiastically. "Think of it! A great ship that goes 27 knots an hour!" But the vizier yawned and said: "Why do you Christians always want to go so fast, when all roads alike lead to the grave?"

A countryman took his sweetheart into a West End theater in London. Going up to the ticket office, the girl hanging to his sleeve of his jacket, he banged down a dollar and said:

"Two seats!"

"Stalls?" inquired the ticket clerk.

"Look here, my man," said the countryman, rather sharply; "dinna think because we come frae the country that we're cattle! Gie's twa cooshioned seatse!"

EXTRACTING A SAFETY PIN

Accompanying Illustration Shows Operation by Means of Instrument Called "Endoscope."

The accompanying illustration shows the operation of removing a safety pin from the throat by means of an instrument called the "endoscope." Its construction is so simple that an explanation is hardly necessary, except that it should be mentioned that the pin-extracting device, which slides in the tube of the instrument, is only one of the many accessories that may be used in connection with it, says the Popular Mechanics. Among these accessories is an electromagnet for removing particles of iron, pincers for extracting bones, etc. By means of a suitable optical arrangement the surgeon has the object to be removed in full view during the operation.

$1,635,000 Hidden

In This Year's Goodyear Tires

Here are amazing facts: Goodyear Fortified Tires contain five costly features found in no other tire. They have other features not common.

If we omitted those features, this year's probable output would cost us $1,635,000 less. We could add that much to our profits. And you would never know it until troubles came.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly. Most of this goes into extra rubber—all into extra wear. And we shall spend on research $100,000 this year to find other betterments still.

Users Save $5,000,000

Yet our 1915 price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about $5,000,000 this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

These extra features—used by us alone—will save users millions more.

That's why Goodyears dominate. They have long outsold any other. They are gaining new users faster than we can supply them. We hope, for your own sake, that they'll soon win you. Any dealer will supply you. (2419)

TOBACCO PROSPECTS LOOKING BRIGHTER

Weather Great Asset to Growing Plants.—Eastern Companies Flushed With Orders.

Transplanting of tobacco plants is now in full swing and the weather, which is now prevailing, means a quick growth of the young plants. In all the tobacco prospects both for the farmer and dealer have improved so much within the last week or two, that an exceptional year is looked for. Reports from this vicinity show that nearly half of the transplanting has been accomplished, and that the plants are progressing in fine manner.

Bulking is steadily going on at the Baines warehouse and will keep the force employed there until after the last of July. However, if the help question, which has been a drawback to many dealers this year, does not bother the local concern, they might finish before the first of August. The tobacco, now being handled, was brought in about three months ago and it is in very good condition.

The eastern dealers have reported that they are behind in their orders and cannot get enough skilled labor to fill the calls now on hand. This boom is probably a result of the unsettled conditions in Europe, and is bound to reach this section before long. However, the shipping to the foreign countries has been greatly impaired on account of the war and many of the large European orders go unfilled. The big orders in the east have been coming in for a period of about two or three weeks.

W. T. Pomeroy and company of Edgerton have been notified that they have been awarded a gold medal at the San Francisco-Panama exposition, for display of leaf tobacco, but have also been informed that the gold for the medal must be furnished by the party or parties to whom the award is made.

TEXAS EXPECTS TEN MILLION BUSHELS SWEET POTATO CROP.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dallas, Tex., July 1.—Sweet are the uses of diversification. In fact, so sweet, as applied to Texas crops, that this year Texas will raise a 100 per cent larger sweet potato crop than ever before—a bumper harvest of 10,000,000 bushels.

H. C. Thompson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is due here this month to give Texas farmers lessons in housing this gigantic crop, so that they won't be caught as last year with 50 cents a bushel prices when by merely holding for a time they could get two or three dollars a bushel.

TELLS OF NEW BOATS ENGLAND IS MAKING

Janesville Man Receives Letter From English Friend—War Craft of Monitor Type.

According to a letter just received by Edwin F. Lewis of this city from relatives in England, the English government is making gigantic preparations for the continuance of the smashing of the forts at the Dardanelles and the propagation of the fighting along that strip of Belgian coast now held by the Germans.

The latest ships of war under construction in English navy yards are monitors, of shallow draft, very little gunwhale, and mounted with 18-inch guns. The shell that these naval armament will fire will be about one and a half inches greater in diameter than the shell of the famous forty-two centimetre cannon which, with no trouble at all, battered down the forts at Liege and Namur, forts which military men of the world, previous to the opening of the war, termed impregnable.

To the casual eye of one not conversant with military and naval strategy it would seem that England plans the landing of a portion of Kitchener's army in German Belgium and at the Dardanelles. This could be done under the cover of the guns of the new monitors, which with their shallow draft would be able to clear the shore of the enemy.

In the Dardanelles especially the new craft can be particularly adapted to the fighting along the low, shallow shores.

The letter states that Kitchener's army is trained to the minute. When it will be moved is a secret of the English admiralty.

DIABETES INCREASES RAPIDLY IN THE U. S.

Chicago Doctor Says Disease Finds Most Victims Among Intelligent Classes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, July 1—Diabetes is on the increase in the United States, claiming as its victims particularly persons of high social and economic value, according to Dr. Clifford Mitchell, of Chicago, who addressed the American Institute of Homeopathy here today. Dr. Mitchell said:

"Diabetes is a disease which is increasnig steadily in the United States. Mortuary statistics available include the deaths registered up to the year 1914, and from them we learn that between 1901 and 1905, there were only 3,772 registered deaths from this disease, on an average for these six years, but in the year 1913, there were 9,660 deaths. The death rate on the average from 1901 to 1905 was per 100,000 only 11.5, while that for 1913 was 15.3.

"Moreover, disregarding the mortality, but looking at the disease from the viewpoint of curability, diabetes is certainly more formidable than almost any disease with which we are familiar, in asmuch as neither drugs, diet, climate nor surgical operation can be said to effect a cure, and the average age of death from diabtes is between fifty and fifty-five.

"The number of persons in the United States with latent diabetes is probaly larger than we realize. The existence of concealed diabetic tendencies in a considerable number of beings must be recognized. It is time that both press and public woke up to the fact that diabetes in the Twentieth Cenrury has killed more than ten thousand persons in the United States alone, and that most of these persons were of high social and economic value was responsible for the statement that 'If you have diabetes, it's a cinch you have brains.'

"Diabetes is indeed a disease of the intelligent class, and we can ill afford to let it prey upon these people so much needed by our nation at all times."

CITY WATER BILLS ARE PAYABLE NOW; PENALTY ON 16TH

Notices Sent to Consumers Today. —Bills Not Paid by July 25th Will Cause Service to Cease.

Miss Freda Zimmerman, presiding behind the grillwork in the office of the city water department in the city hall building today, was an extremely busy person. Today, July 1, Water bills for the quarter were due and payable.

Throughout the morning and afternoon a constant stream of consumers visited the office to pay their bills. These were people who knew previously that such payments would fall due on the first day of July. Notices were distributed about the city today notifying patrons that their bills were due.

A penalty of 10 percent will be charged on all payments not received before 12 o'clock on July 15, and all consumers not paying at a similar time on July 25th, will have their service discontinued. A charge of $1 will be made for turning on water where it has been turned off for violation of rules or for non-payment of bills. The board in charge of the operation of the plant have not fully determined on their rules of operation as yet, but are rapidly getting the matter into form.

Commissioner Roy Cummings, who is in charge of the department, has announced the hours the department office will be open for the collection of water bills. Daily, bills may be paid from 8 a. m. to 12 p. m. and from 12:45 p. m. to 6 p. m. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings the office will be open from 7 to 9 o'clock. Patrons are requested to bring their receipts with them, a proceeding which will save much valuable time and work to the department and no doubt permit no inconvenience to the payee.

Hereafter it has been announced flat and meter bills will be collected every three months. Under the old system the former were collected semi-annually. From now on and until further notice all bills will be payable on the first day of July, October, January and April.

Meters in buildings or flats, which serve more than one tenant, will be charged the minimum rate of $2.50 for each quarter for each tenant served. Water used for sprinkling must be metered, a clause which is causing a good many lawns in the city to hold a rusty appearance, according to owners who previously were permitted to sprinkle to their hearts' content.

CHIEF HAS WARNING TO LOCAL MERCHANTS

Check-raisers Secure Money In Northern Illinois Towns and May Jump to Wisconsin.

Janesville merchants and business men are warned by Chief of Police Champion to be on their guard against cashing the checks offered by strangers. From the number of reports reaching the local department from cities in northern Illinois it is apparent that a systematic scheme for the fleecing of merchants and business men, well prepared and worked out, is under way.

It appears that there are two men in the party and that they have reached this section of the country after working west from the central east. For some time past the men have been working in the smaller villages and cities and towns of northern Illinois. Several days ago the men jumped into Rockford and although the matter was hushed, one Forest City business man lost $543.50 in cashing the check of the polite and polished strangers.

It is also said that during the past eight days the gang worked Freeport to the disadvantage of several accommodating merchants, but were only able to get away with an amount of about $97 there. The losses were in small amounts but when the police began to hear reports of repeated losses they made an investigation and discovered that Freeport merchants were out nearly $100.

CAN AMERICAN OPERA EQUAL EUROPEAN COMPOSERS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Los Angeles, July 1.—The long standing question of whether or not an America opera, in English, can be written to compare with the works of great European composers and librettists may be decided here tonight at the first production of "Fairyland," $10,000 prize opera of the American Federation of Music Clubs.

Some of the greatest critics in the country have arrived here to attend the first production, for which practically no expense has been spared.

The opera's three act piece, is a central European setting of the 13th century, was written by Horatio Parker, dean of music at Yale.

It is a chorus opera, and the music is said to bear an individuality distinctly apart from the modern and ancient schools of European opera. The work of producing it has been under the direction of Alfred Hertz for 13 years director of Wagnerian opera at the Metropolitan in New York.

Predictions are that it will be a big success.

VALUE STATE WEALTH NEAR THREE BILLION

U. S. Census Places Estimate On Wisconsin Consequent On Census Taken In 1912.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 1.—Wisconsin is worth nearly two and a half billions of dollars.

That is the estimate of the U. S. government in its 1912 census of the assessed valuation of property subject to ad valorem taxation, just released. The actual figures are, $2,466,636,000. This is over thirteen times as great as the valuation in 1860, which was $185,945,000. As this property was valued at only $33,209,000 in 1880, it is shown that the jump into the billions has occurred in recent years.

Reduced to a per capita basis, the value of the average property held by each man, woman and child in Wisconsin in 1912 was $1,010.31, against $239.66 in 1860, and $208.66 in 1880.

In Milwaukee county alone the property subject to an ad valorem tax in 1912 was valued at $524,732,546. In 1890 the valuation was $119,688,868. The per capita in 1912 was $1,124,33, against $506.94 in 1890.

BURKE ATTEMPTS TO AMEND BADGER LAWS ON BRANDING FOODS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 1.—Another attempt to amend the Wisconsin laws on branding of foods is made by the introduction of a bill by Senator Burke covering the labeling of so-called corn syrup. Referring to the present law on the subject, the proposed amendment says:

"It shall be a compliance with this statute if there be placed upon such brand, tag or label of any such mixture containing glucose, otherwise known as corn syrup, the following: 'Glucose (corn syrup), —— per cent;' or at the option of such dealer the following: 'Corn syrup,' when used to designate the name of an ingredient of the mixture, shall be printed in the same size and style of type. It shall also be permissible to label such mixture 'corn syrup with cane flavor' if refiners' syrup constitutes one of the ingredients of the mixture; and in case any of the other syrups named constitute one of the ingredients of such mixture the name of the mixture may be similarly described upon the label."

Corn on the Cob
--the Roasting Ear

New
Post Toasties

Is not more delicious than the

In the growth of corn there is a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious (roasting ears). As it slowly ripens this hardens and finally becomes almost flinty.

This nutritious part of the corn is cooked, seasoned, rolled thin, and toasted by a new process which enhances the true corn flavour.

Different from ordinary corn flakes, the New Post Toasties have a distinctive form and flavour; and they keep their appetizing crispness, even after cream or milk is added.

These Superior Corn Flakes come oven-fresh in tight wax-sealed packages; and they cost no more than ordinary "corn flakes." Insist upon having

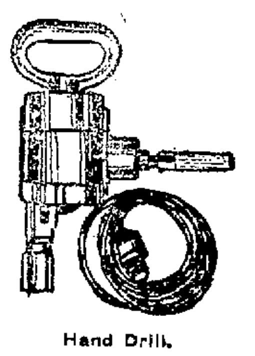
DOUBLES CAPACITY OF PLANT

Chicago Manufacturer Claims Electric Drills and Hammer Do Better and Quicker Work.

"The adoption of electrically operated hand drills and hammers has almost doubled the capacity of our plant," said E. A. Williams, manager of a large Chicago manufacturing concern.

Mr. Williams then told of the many uses to which these machines were put, and how the work had been done better and cheaper.



Hand Drill.

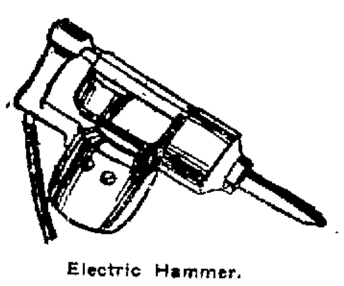
The hand drill shown in the illustration is the one used by this concern. It is operated by a compact little motor, which is connected to the ordinary electric light socket.

After the current has been turned on the speed may easily be regulated by turning a thumb screw at the side. This size of drill is the smallest one used in this shop, and they employ several larger and more powerful ones for larger work.

"The operator may devote all his attention to the work he is doing," said Mr. Williams, "and does not have to use one hand and half an eye to the operating of the drill itself. His attention is all on his work."

The electric hammer shown in the lower picture, is likewise operated by a small motor.

"Our work must be accurate," remarked Mr. Williams in speaking of this hammer, "and the least slip of a chisel is likely to send an expensive casting to the scrap heap. When a man has a heavy hammer in one hand and the chisel in the other, these slips are very liable to occur frequently.



Electric Hammer.

"As with the drill, the operator may devote his entire attention to the work as the blow of the hammer is entirely automatic."

ARIZONA GOVERNOR SLATON'S PARALLEL

LIKE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF GEORGIA, WESTERN MAN IS MAKING VALIANT BATTLE AGAINST ODDS.

HE SEEKS SAVING FIVE

Quintet of Murders Must Answer Penalty With Death Unless Reprieved Before July 25.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Phoenix, Ariz., July 1—Before July 23 the five murderers who were saved from the Florence penitentiary gallows May 28 only by an eleventh hour reprieve will again stand in the shadow of the scaffold. The reprieves were for nine weeks' duration. By the law, the men must hang before July 23.

But Governor Hunt of Arizona, whose fight against capital punishment has saved the five from death so far, refuses to sign the necessary papers or fix the execution dates. He refuses to be a party to the execution. And the five are confident that the "big governor" will never let them hang.

On May 28, the Arizona prison at Florence was the scene of one of the most dramatic events in criminal history. N. B. Chavez, Edurado Perez, Miguel Peralta, Francisco Rodriguez and Ramon Villaloboz donned their clothes that day. It seemed that their long fight against the extreme penalty had ended in defeat. The gallows was ready, the witnesses assembled in the tower where the five were to be hanged. A desperate last minute battle to save them was being waged all over the state. The pardon board, which had power of life and death over them, was appealed to, at first in vain. Secretary Bryan and General Francisco Villa asked mercy for them—the latter on the ground that they had not received fair trials. Federal Judge Sawtells refused a writ of habeas corpus for the five, and denied their lawyers the right of appeal from his decision. When it seemed that every device had failed, the pardon board weakened and granted the nine weeks reprieve.

The fact that the pardon and reprieve power was vested exclusively in this board was due to the fact that Governor Hunt made a strenuous campaign in favor of a constitutional amendment abolishing the gallows from Arizona. The voters turned against him on that issue. Although they elected him, they rejected his pet amendment, and instead adopted one stripping him of his pardon and reprieve power and giving it to the board of three.

Shortly after his first inauguration, February 14, 1912, Hunt announced his opposition to capital punishment and proposed to eliminate it from his state. He emphasized this stand by respiting from time to time, the murderers then under sentence of death. This created dissatisfaction throughout Arizona. Pending the next election when the anti-capital punishment amendment was to be voted on, Hunt continued his policy of reprieving each slayer when his execution date came near. H stumped the state, declaring he cared more for the abolition of hanging than for his own reelection.

..rdmhoenix nTv1 s.a eefl MXAy

When the voters went against it, Hunt fought the new amendment in the lower courts, was defeated, went to the supreme court, and was again defeated. So he was deprived of his pardon power and the condemned men were apparently helpless.

The pardon board met and fixed the death date. With two weeks in which to work, Hunt and his friends started a new fight against the execution. Ministers discussed the case in the pulpits, all kinds of organizations passed resolutions either favoring or condemning what some termed "legalized murder." Leagues were formed, petitions circulated Hunt appealed to the New York newspapers, and the publicity they gave his cause brought such a huge volume of protests to the pardons board that a staff of clerks was employed to handle the mail. Great pressure was brought to bear on C. O. Case, superintendent of public instruction, and Frank Trott, both members of the board. They wavered, but finally stood firm. Wiley E. Jones, attorney general and third member of the board, always stood pat.

The Legislature was appealed to—the House adopted a memorial against the executions. Then, the day before the hangings, came the intervention of Bryan and the rapid fire series of events leading up to the last minute reprieves.

Folowing is a history of the cases of the five condemned men, and also of eight others in the prison under sentence of death:

N. B. Chavez was a miner at Jerome in Yavapai county. He engaged in an altercation with Charles King, the marshal at Jerome, and a deputy sheriff of the county whom he shot and killed. The murder occurred on August 27, 1910. Chavez was found guilty on January 9, 1911, and sentenced to hang on March 17, 1911. He appealed from the judgment of the lower court. The supreme court sustained the judgment and Chavez was re-sentenced. In the meantime, the Hunt regime began with its policy of reprieve. Chavez has been in Florence prison over four years. Previous to his conviction of murder, he served a term for a felony.

Eduardo Perez killed Felicio Chacon at Congress Junction in Yavapai county November 18, 1910. He was found guilty December 30, 1910, and sentenced to hang April 21, 1911. He was reprieved and July 31, 1911, was granted a new trial. He was again found guilty and appealed to the supreme court which sustained the judgment of the lower court. This also carried this case into the Hunt administration, which commenced in the spring og 1912. Perez is 30 years old.

Miguel Peralta killed his former wife and her Mexican consort at Jerome, in Yavapai county, June 29, 1912. He pleaded guilty, and after the court examined eight witnesses who testified to the cold blooded premeditation of the crime, he was sentenced to be hanged October 11, 1912. He has been reprieved from time to time by Gov. Hunt, has never denied his guilt and never appealed his case.

Francisco Rodriguez is the only one of the five who was born in this country He is a native of Tuscan, 33 years old, and a plumber by trade He came to Phoenix in 1911 and on April 2 quarrelled with his wife and slew her. A jury promptly found him guilty and he was sentenced to be hanged July 24, 1911.

Ramon Villaloboz, with others, was suspected of theft and inciting a riot at Ray, a mining camp in Final county in October, 1914. The gang of which he was a member was pursued by a posse, and Villaloboz shot and killed constable Phineas Brown. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged January 8, 1915. On that date, Warden Sims refused to carry out the execution on the ground that the newly created board of pardons had not yet passed upon his case. The prisoner was re-sentenced to be hanged on March 19, 1915, and was reprieved with the other four until May 28, 1915. Sims was investigated and censured by a committee of the legislature for his failure to carry out the execution on the date fixed.

Besides the five men who were sentenced to die on May 28, eight others are under sentence of death.

Atha M. Leonard and John Tomlin shot and killed Marshal Hi Peterson, at Mesa, Maricopa county, Nov. 12, 1913, while Peterson was attempting to arrest them for stealing bicycles. The case is now on appeal.

Francisco Garcia shot and killed policeman Charles Harris of the Phoenix force July 6, 1913. The officer was searching the railroad yards for suspected holdup men when he was attacked by Garcia. The case is now on appeal.

Robert Dayton Talley shot and killed Jesse Danner of Miami, Gila county, Nov. 18, 1913. Talley was in love with Danner's daughter and the men quarrelled over the fact. The case is now on appeal.

Wililam Faltin shot and killed Carl Peterson, his roommate, Sept. 9, 1912, and buried the body a short distance from the house. Motive robbery. The case is now on appeal.

Charles Dingle and Ben Merriweather, negro troopers stationed at Douglas, Cochise county, killed Joe Englent, an auto driver, Nov. 16, 1914. The case is now on appeal.

HYGIENE IS SUBJECT BY MARGARET DOWNS

Students at Teachers' Summer Session Hear Practical Talk This Morning By Milwaukee Lecturer.

Students at the teachers' summer session heard a very practical and instructive talk this morning between eleven and twelve o'clock by Miss Margaret Downs of Milwaukee, on the subject of "Personal Hygiene." Miss Downs, who is lecturing in behalf of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis society, will be in Janesville on Friday, and will give another lecture to these same students tomorrow morning from 8:30 until 9:30 on the subject "Home and School Sanitation," to which the public is invited.

It was announced in Tuesday's issue that Miss Downs would give a lecture at three o'clock in the high school. In its place she gave the students of the school a practical talk, illustrated, on games, which the teachers should know. The students all assembled on the lawn at the rear of the high school to receive this instruction.

In taking up the subject of "Personal Hygiene," Miss Downs spoke of its great importance in all walks of life. Teachers had never thought of mentioning this subject and its fundamentals to the pupils between the first and eighth grades until it was suggested a few years ago. Today the schools are growing deeply interested in the subject, which they should do.

"It is the duty of all teachers to know how often a pupil takes a bath. Also, she should know how often a pupil cleans his or her teeth. Recently, I asked, in a country school of 28 pupils, how many took a bath once a week. Only a handful raised their hands. After gathering my data, I discovered that practically all of the pupils managed to take a bath once in every two weeks. And regarding the use of toothbrushes, I found that only four of the 28 pupils owned brushes, and that only one of the four failed to use his brush. I do not ask you to criticise a pupil's father or mother, but use tact in teaching them the better methods of cleanliness. Organize clean-up clubs. That, I believe, is a way to solve the conditions that are all but sanitary."

"The country is oftentimes worse than the city, regarding health conditions. There are five causes for disease, which are, lack of fresh air, lack of sunshine lack of rest lack of proper food and carelessness and ignorance. Only one costs money, that of proper food. The latter is the fault of the person. The first three can be had for nothing."

Miss Downs urged the teachers taking up the training work, to jot down the main facts given in her talk to save for future reference. Regarding sleep, she stated that children six and seven years of age need at least eleven hours of rest, in addition to their daily recreation; youths between the ages of eight and ten need ten hours sleep; between eleven and thirteen nine hours sleep, and the teachers themselves need eight hours sleep.

Miss Downs will conclude her visit to Janesville Friday afternoon with a lecture between two-thirty and three-thirty, to which the public is invited. Professor James will lecture tomorrow morning at 9:45 until 11:15 on agricultural subjects. Professor James is from the state university.

Makes Collar-Buttoning Easy.

A clever little thing in the way of a collar button is the invention of Charles Formage of New Rochelle, N. Y. The button is an ordinary stud of solid metal. but has a tiny screw hole in its center. Into this a tapering peg is screwed. This goes through the bottonhole of a collar without any difficulty or breaking of nails or swearing on the part of the owner. When the collar is on the peg is unscrewed and the button remains.
